Appeals by 2 sides on long-delayed sewers

(15th of a series on politics in Madison County)

As the Appellate Court at Mount Vernon prepares to study the validity of a judicial appeal attempting to halt the construction of sanitary sewers in this area, opponents of the sewer project are appealing to residents, requesting additional money to keep the court case alive.

Almost since its inception, the sewer proposal has encountered political entanglements, with a number of committeemen on both sides of the issue.

A handbill is being distributed in Nameoki and Chouteau townships urging homeowners to donate $10 or more per home to a committee to "stop the sewers."

The handbills carry the names of George W. Dyckman and Ruth Andrews, who have been active in the suit against sanitary sewer general obligation bond financing.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Madison County Board's special sewer committee designing and seeking to implement the sewers, Walter "Dick" Sparks, has urged that residents not contribute, warning them that continued court action could drive up the cost of sewers and could cause them to lose federal and state grants which are to pay most of the multi-million-dollar construction cost.

The text of the handbills seeking funds follows:

"Taxpayers, unfair tax can still be defeated.

"An appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court (actually the Appellate Court) was filed on Jan. 14, 1977, by our attorney on behalf of all objectors in Sewer Area One to halt permanently further development of unfair increased real estate taxes.

"Our goal is to restore the method of financing to the original plan, whereby each homeowner pays the same

While the announcement Tuesday night of a tentative agreement between Illinois Power Co. and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was welcome news to most residents, the good news was offset this week by a highway construction strike, a disturbance at a local industry strike and the threat of a strike against Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

About 2,500 Teamsters went on strike at 12:01 a.m. today against Associated General Contractors of Illinois, halting numerous projects throughout the state, including construction

Police in Madison rejecting 7% raise

By MICK STRANGE

Press-Record Staff Writer
Members of Madison Police Unit 110 in a meeting Tuesday evening voted to reject a seven per cent pay increase voted for all fulltime city employees during the Madison City Council meeting that night.

Members of the police group met with the aldermanic finance committee and Mayor Mike Sasyk for an hour prior to the regular council meeting. Police were asking for a 20 per cent raise, in addition to more fringe benefits. Salary is the key issue, according to a police spokesman.

"We have had several meetings with the aldermen and finance committee, but without any agreement. We were told the city could not really afford the seven per cent raise and the finance committee asked us to come up with ways to save money," the police spokesman said.

"Items we have suggested have been ignored. The council also denied all our requests for additional fringe benefits. So we met tonight and voted unanimously to reject the pay raise."

Mayor Sasyk in commenting on the police pay issue said, "There are 33 cities in Southern Illinois between 5,000 and 25,000 population and Madison ranks fifth among them in police pay."

4 GC police are promoted

By VALERIE EVENDEN

Granite City aldermen gave their unanimous approval to the promotion of four Granite City police officers and the hiring of a probationary patrolman at the City Council meeting Tuesday night.

The vote to endorse the police department's recommendations was 12 to 0. All the promotions and hiring of the new officer are effective Aug. 1.

Three of the promotions, directly resulting from the death on July 20 of Police Captain Joseph J. Nemeth, 51, and the subsequent related vacancies, are those of Lieutenant Harry Mitchell to captain, Sergeant Albert Diak to lieutenant and Patrolman Dennis Ray Joyce to sergeant.

The promotion of Patrolman Glenn Wright to the rank of sergeant was to fill a vacancy previously in existence. Jerry Duncan, 22, an emergency medical technician with the city ambulance service since March, was named a probationary patrolman to fill a vacancy occurring in the department from the July 1 retirement of Lieutenant Kenneth Watts.

The list of men within the department eligible for promotion to captain's rank is now exhausted, Police Chief Ronald J. Veizer said, in announcing that an examination for this rank will take place Aug. 13.

Testing of those who have applied for patrolman status is scheduled Aug. 20, Chief Veizer said. A veteran police officer with experience in all aspects of law

City tax hike

By BILL WINTER

(Related articles on Pages 5-9-10-28)

Endowed with home-rule power but voicing a desire to wield it conservatively, Granite City aldermen Tuesday night adopted a record $7,586,109 annual budget that could boost taxes due to a $266,211 imbalance.

Some members of the City Council indicated they believe federal revenue sharing ought to be used solely for capital expenditures to avoid becoming "hooked" on it in paying municipal salaries in case Congress drops the sharing program in the future. They urged a bigger property tax boost now as a means of "kicking the habit," but others favored a phased withdrawal from what they called the present necessity of meeting some payroll costs with U.S. funds.

Rising salaries and pensions were the chief factor in the $1,436,225 increase-for the May (Continued on Page 8)

Pool closing Aug. 28

The Granite City Park District Board of Commissioners, prompted by a letter received from the Illinois Department of Public Health and other factors, sealed the fate of Wilson Park's 37-year-old swimming facility, voting last night to close the pool as of Sunday, Aug. 28.

In past years, the pool was allowed to remain open through the Labor Day holiday.

Board President Robert Pieck said, "A discussion of board members resulted in our concluding that the cost involved in maintaining the pool, along with schools here starting Aug. 25, makes it impractical to stay open."

On and off the record Trash pickup time to change

New trash and garbage routes will begin Monday, Aug. 1, in Granite City, SCA Services, Inc., Milam East Division, informed the City Council Tuesday night.

"The pickup day won't change for anyone," a spokesman told the Press-Record.

"We are adding two trucks, and certain routes will be split to take care of the increased volume and to upgrade the service.

"Pickup times will change, so we are asking everyone to set their trash outdoors as early as possible on their regular pickup day. Those who are missed may call us at 451-9715 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and we'll make a return visit."

Benson leading a resurgence of jazz

It was George Benson who finally won a battle in the war between rock and jazz. For years, the jazz artists had been trying to win back the ground lost to rock in the '60s and early '70s, but rock's record sales kept rising and jazz kept losing... until Benson.

Last year, George Benson, who is appearing Friday at 8:30 p.m. at the Mississippi River Festival on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, released "Breezin'". Suddenly, jazz was back, as "Breezin'" went double platinum—selling more than two million copies.

"This Masquerade," the top single from the album, became a top ten single release. The success was hard earned for Benson. The jazz guitarist has been a staple in his field for years and is considered by many critics the best jazz guitarist of this generation.

But being the best in jazz doesn't necessarily mean being the biggest in music, and Benson "paid his dues" playing small clubs in large and small towns.

He started at age eight, playing a ukulele in a candy store before an admiring throng of peers. That performance earned him local shows at parties and carnivals.

By the time he was entering the teens, he was also entering the record business. And by the time he was 20, he was in the big leagues of jazz, playing guitar for Jack McDuff in his small ensemble.

Then, a few years later, Benson left to form his own group, and his career has been on a steady, if slow and measured, rise since. That is, until "Breezin'".

That album, following 10 years of work, put Benson at the top and made his name a familiar one to the record-buying masses as well as the jazz fans.

The album was named top for the year by both Billboard and Record World.

A never album, "In Flight," is doing well. And, interestingly, "In Flight" is considered proof that Benson hasn't fallen prey to the lure of superstardom.

Rather than bring out an album filled with popular hits, short enough for radio play and catchy enough to please everyone, Benson has, in "In Flight," produced an album that features six long tunes.

As he put it, "Despite the success of our single, we're not going to become a three-minute song act. If it happens again, fine, but I'm basically an album artist."

Appearing with Benson will be Minnie Riperton, an artist with a five-octave vocal range who has gone on from the major hit, "Lovin' You," in 1975 to concert tours and nightclub shows that allow her stage presence to fully complement her voice.

Festival Director Lyle Ward is reminding River Festival patrons that alcohol and glass containers are prohibited at the Festival site.

Certified professional secretary class slated

A Certified Professional Secretary (CPS) program is scheduled by Belleville Area College, to begin Oct. 4 and continue through April 11, 1978.

The 25 three-hour sessions will be held on Tuesday evenings from 6 to 8:45 on the Belleville East High School Campus, Room S-102. The local area is part of the BAC district.

Called comparable to the CPA designation in the accounting profession, the CPS designation is awarded by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries upon successful completion of a six-part examination given annually, within a five-year time allowance.

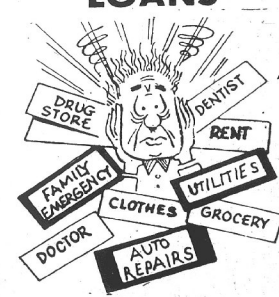

The CPS course offered by BAC is designed to prepare secretaries to take the exam. It covers all six subject areas: (1) office procedures, (2) business law, (3) communications and decision-making, (4) economics, (5) environmental relations, and (6) accounting. Sue Bress, CPS, will be the instructor. Registration for the class will begin on Aug. 15 at the main campus, 2500 Carlyle Road, and will continue until the class is filled or until the first evening of classes, Oct. 4. Registration will be accepted Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. The fee for the entire 25 sessions is $44.

For further information, area citizens may contact the Department of General Studies and Community Services at Belleville Area College, 235-2700, extensions 201, 202 or 289.

Question suspect

Granite City police today were questioning a 25-year-old man in connection with an incident early Monday in which three youths showing a knife and a club assaulted two men in a car in front of Kirkpatrick Homes.

One spit in the driver's face and then kicked the auto, denting it, and another threw a club at the passenger, denting the right door of the auto.

The driver called police at 1:45 a.m. today from Stieb's Tavern, 2022 Nameoki Road, and reported that one of those who assaulted him was in auto near the tavern.

Police arrested the 25-year-old and filed preliminary charges against him of criminal damage to property and two counts of assault.

The other two men involved are being sought.

The police department was cut by $3,864, from $232,246 to $228,384; and the executive department was reduced $9,216 from $38,936 to $29,719, with an administrative aide to the mayor deleted.

The largest departmental increase was $12,061 for the fire department, from $50,912 to $62,973, as additional uniforms and equipment are to be purchased.

Other departments increased slightly were: street and alley, $113,579, up $9,655; legislative, $29,500, up $2,300; city clerk office, $5,720, up $90; legal, $14,680, up $500; health and humane, $6,750, up $150; sewer, $14,151, up $1,347; finance and accounting, $25,549, up $2,185; municipal buildings, $15,412, up $1,361.

Building inspector, $8,820, up $50; police commissioners, $3,800, up $50; street lighting, gas and electricity, $39,000 up $5,000.

Fire Hydrants and water, $5,300, up $500; insurance, $80,250, up $3,500; summer youth program, $7,500, up $4,000; contingency fund, $10,000, up $2,750; and elections $1,875, up $150.

Programs unchanged were: bridge operation, $2,500; industrial site, $25,000; Manpower program, $6,000, and interest and judgments, $1,000.

Other funds unchanged were: public benefits, $7,500; police pension fund, $40,000; emergency services and disaster agencies, $2,300; playground and recreation fund, $32,346; Illinois municipal retirement, $65,000, and working cash fund, $41,000.

The public library budget was increased $5,741 to $34,696 to cover increased expenses of books and new programs being started.

Underwater film showing Sunday

Dewey Avenue United Methodist Church and Trinity United Methodist Church will have services and fellowship together on Sunday evening, July 31, at Dewey Avenue United Methodist Church, according to the Rev. Eugene Beasley, pastor.

At 6:30 p.m. the congregation will attend a salad supper in the basement of the host church, followed at 7:30 with a program of special music and a film "Voice of the Deep."

Do fish "talk"? If so, what do they sound like? How important is sound to underwater life? These questions are explored in the new Moody Institute of Science film "Voice of the Deep." This ultramodern version of the first underwater sound motion picture ever produced takes viewers on a voyage beneath the sea—to disclose startling discoveries about the secrets of the so-called "silent deep." New techniques of photography bring to the screen scenes of breath-taking beauty.

Why this second version of "Voice of the Deep"? The subject matter is of vital importance today. Only recently have scientists discovered how tremendously important underwater sound is.

Above all, "Voice of the Deep" has perhaps the most timely and "relevant" message that Moody Institute of Science has ever produced, the ministers added.

Rev. Beasley and Rev. Paul Bryant, Trinity pastor, urge their members to attend this time of fellowship and program.

Mrs. Warnhoff is hostess to club

Mrs. Creola Warnhoff, 2717 Madison Ave., entertained the ACS Pinocchio Club at her home Tuesday evening, along with two guests, Mrs. Marsella Seifried of Cuba, Mo., and Mrs. Kathryn Smithson.

Among these excellent at cards and winning prizes were Mrs. Elvira Thurber, first, Mrs. Lillian Naeve, second, Mrs. Pauline Smith, third, and Mrs. Smithson.

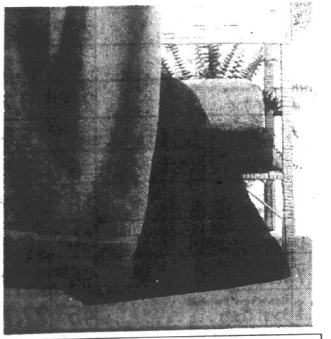

A dessert course was served by the hostess to those named and to Mrs. Ruby Hornberger, Mrs. Sue Krueger and Mrs. Margaret Belt.

Some aldermen say new city budget is 'fat free'

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Staff Writer
New Granite City 1977-78 fiscal year municipal budgets which were approved by the Granite City Council Tuesday night were the subjects of intense scrutiny during a special council meeting the evening before, but Monday's meeting ended with the aldermen expressing general approval of the "fat-free" document.

Seventh Ward Alderman Paul Ray Bowler, chairman of the finance committee, noted that the budget presented Monday night reflected a $321,971 deficit, but said he knew of no way at that time that it could be trimmed further.

First Ward Alderman Charles R. Douglas suggested the council consider trimming about seven per cent from every item in the $7,876,109 budget, with the exception of salaries. Douglas said the budget must either be trimmed or taxes raised, "or have some fundamental changes in the way the government is run."

Seventh Ward Alderman Ronald Coleman suggested that some cuts could be made without severe consequences. As an example, he cited items in the street department budget totaling $90,000 which he said could be transferred to the city's federal revenue sharing budget.

Cuts then would have to be made in the revenue sharing budget items for street, sidewalk and gutter work, "but $90,000 split among the city's seven wards would not cut much work in any one ward," Coleman commented.

Cuts he suggested from proposed spending levels included $20,000 for bituminous materials, lumber, sand, cement and other non-arterial supplies, $30,000 for sidewalks, streets and gutters, $15,000 for paint, traffic signs and marking materials and $20,000 for part-time help.

He conceded that the recommendation was not one of any committee, adding, "Just me."

Douglas proposed that the council consider reducing fringe benefits of city employees and Coleman responded, "Do you want to take my place on the negotiating committee?"

representing many city employees would not accept such cuts.

A suggestion that a new fire truck appropriation be cut from the fire department's budget was opposed by Assistant Fire Chief Charles Hileman, who said some of the city's trucks are about 15 years old.

A new pumper truck is needed "if you want to see a truck roll out of the West Granite City fire station when you call one," Hileman commented.

A past practice of cutting the city's contribution to the police and fire pension funds as one way of reducing city budgets was opposed by Bowler, who contended that pension funds have been continually undercut for many years and should not be cut again this year.

Hileman also said he feels the city may be underestimating income next year from the city's ambulance service, noting $1,000 already has been collected since the service began operations March 15 and another $9,000 is due from insurance companies and other sources.

"One ambulance will make eight to 10 trips during an eight-hour shift," he added, concluding, "I think income of $100,000 in the year from the ambulances would be a conservative figure."

Second Ward Alderman Sam Whitmer said the city should hold as much ambulance money as possible, since the Manpower program will stop paying the salaries of the 14 Manpower workers this spring and the city will have to assume their pay.

"Talk about a jolt in the payroll," he exclaimed.

Douglas said the council may consider raising taxes to balance the budget, but admitted he did not feel that would be a popular alternative.

The meeting, which was attended by eight of the 14 aldermen, ended informally as, one by one, the aldermen drifted out of the council chambers.

There was no motion to adjourn and no official actions were taken, although it had been hoped by some that the budget could be passed Monday night.

Attending besides those already mentioned were Fourth Ward Alderman Warren Decatur, Third Ward Alderman Fred P. Schuman Jr. and Roy Poulos and First Ward Alderman Everett Morien.

The meeting followed a federal revenue sharing hearing that drew no comments from the public.

Animal adoption clinic Saturday

An animal adoption clinic will be held from 10:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Saturday near Gasen's Drug Store in the Nameoki Village Shopping Center under sponsorship of the Association for the Protection of Animals (APA).

Two of the dogs available are an adult spayed female German shepherd and a one-year-old male medium-sized part shepherd and part collie described as "good with children." More information on the dogs will be available at the center.

Dogs that will be at the adoption center include a Pekingese named "Kuzette," full blooded, spayed, black and white and good with children.

There also is a seven-month-old part Chihuahua and part Manchester terrier about 10 inches high and good with children.

Two part Labrador retriever female puppies are available. According to an APA spokesman a female beagle tan, white and black in color, is being offered.

In addition to a variety of dogs, several cats and kittens are available, including three eight-week-old tiger-striped Mai males, plus a black and white eight-week-old male.

Three black and three gray tiger-striped seven-week-old kittens are in need of a home. Information on the APA may be obtained from Mrs. Carol Wullaugh, 876-8880, who said the group has raised about one third of the money to build a new animal center.

Contributions for the shelter may be mailed to P.O. Box 1311, Granite City, it was noted.

At school yearbook workshop

The seventh annual yearbook workshop held Sunday through yesterday under sponsorship of the American Yearbook Company was attended by Karee Moonhegian, a senior at Assumption High School.

Held each year on the campus of Quincy College, Quincy, Ill., the summer workshop is an intensive four-day training period to prepare advisors, photographers and yearbook staff members to assume responsibilities on next year's yearbook. She will be on the 1977-78 staff of the Pioneer, the annual published by Assumption High.

Eleven skilled faculty members, drawn from various sections of the country, gave presentation on layouts, themes, designs, photography, copy-writing, graphics, selling and finance. A special feature was the production of a 32 page mini-yearbook by the student editors under the direction of Brother Michael Rice, faculty moderator at Griffin High School, Springfield.

The workshop was under the general direction of Howard Emerson, advisor for the yearbook and newspaper at Hazelwood Central High School, St. Louis. He was the youngest editor of a daily newspaper in Independence, Mo., and has produced the largest yearbook ever published by a high school, encompassing over 600 pages and 8,000 copies.

Who would finance Walker comeback?

By AL MANNING

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD

Thurs., July 28, 1977 Page 6

SPRINGFIELD — Some supporters of former Gov. Dan Walker do not think he will seek office next year because of the difficulty he will have raising campaign money.

Although Walker encourages speculation about whether he might become a candidate for U.S. senator or governor, some aides think he will be unable to do so because of money problems.

Walker's style is to run a high-powered media campaign with emphasis on television advertising. It's the most expensive kind of campaigning.

If he does make a bid for office and is opposed by a candidate of the regular Democratic organization — who would finance his comeback? Walker bankrolled his own effort in the 1972 Democratic primary.

According to Walker's figures — there was no law requiring campaign disclosure in 1972 — he spent nearly a half a million dollars of his own money when he challenged Paul Simon for the Democratic nomination.

Since Walker was such an underdog in that campaign, he was not able to raise much money. So, being a wealthy man, he borrowed heavily from his own assets.

In addition to the $461,000 he borrowed, he said he received approximately $300,000 in contributions.

Had Walker lost that primary, of course, he would have lost his sizable fortune, also. Few persons would have been willing to help the defeated candidate pay off his enormous debts.

But he won, and contributors were generous with their money. Walker said he was repaid the money he loaned the campaign prior to his inauguration.

In his unsuccessful re-election bid last year, Walker used very little of his own money — compared to the previous campaign — $25,000. Instead he relied heavily on firms which do business with the state and employees who depended on him for their jobs.

He spent well over a million dollars in losing the nomination to Michael Howlett.

According to records on file at the state Board of Elections, the committee did not repay all of the loans from the 1976 campaign.

If he ran again, who would finance his campaign? Vic de Grazia, his deputy and chief political strategist, says he thinks persons who contributed last time would be willing to contribute again. He says financing would present no obstacle.

If Walker would not be opposed in the primary, traditional sources of financing for Democratic candidates would probably be available for the general election.

However, many of those employees who contributed $50 to his primary campaign did so last time because they were afraid they would lose their job if they did not.

Since he is out of office now, the employees could not be intimidated into contributing again.

There's also talk that Walker was financed by liberals from the east coast, and that it would happen again. He did receive large contributions in 1976 from Ohio firms that did highway work in this state, but the former governor says he received very little money from out of state for his 1976 campaign.

Would he finance his own campaign as he once did? It seems unlikely because the chances of beating either Gov. James Thompson or Sen. Charles Percy are remote.

He gambled his fortune once and won. The odds are against him doing it again.

UNDERCOATING—RALPH'S TEXACO 22ND & MADISON AVE.

Dixon deferring decision

By AL MANNING

SPRINGFIELD — Secretary of State Alan Dixon said polls would have to show that he had a chance to win before he would become a candidate for governor or senator.

During an interview in his Statehouse office, Dixon emphasized he has not made a decision about his political future.

He said he is content in his present office, but he said that doesn't mean he wouldn't challenge Gov. James Thompson or U.S. Sen. Charles Percy next year.

There is considerable speculation about Dixon's plans because Democrats recognize that Thompson and Percy will lead a formidable GOP ticket next year.

Dixon is in much the same position politically that Michael Howlett was two years ago. Howlett was a popular secretary of state who was considered a cinch for re-election.

Howlett, of course, said he would run for governor in the election, then reversed himself at the urging of the late Mayor Daley and ran against him, resulting in disaster.

Comptroller Michael Bakalis suggested recently that certain reforms might be the party were necessary so Democrats could begin their campaigns differently than they did last time.

The following is an edited version of the conversation with Dixon concerning his future and the future of the Democratic Party:

Q: "This will be the first election since 1962 that Mayor Daley has not played a key role in the process. Will there be some differences? If so, what will they be?"

A: "There will be some differences, of course. There will be some reformation of the slate-making process. I don't know what it will be, but I hope it will be a process agreed to by all party leaders in the state. I don't think we can speculate about what those reformations will be, but I think you can say it will be a process in which the various parts of the state are more equally represented."

Q: "In any number of ways. If you just had the state central committee ultimately vote, that would be different because they represent the 24 Congressional districts of the state and they are apportioned to the one-man, one-vote principle."

Q: "What about timing in a race for governor. When would you have to announce?"

A: "If you were a complete political unknown, you probably, for all practical purposes, ought to be running right now. But for those whom major speculation centers, I would say the late fall is early enough for a March primary."

Q: "What considerations do you take into account when determining whether to run?"

A: "First off, I ought to point out I haven't made any statement about what I'm going to do next year. Clearly, there are four options. I could run for the U.S. Senate. I could run for governor. I could seek re-election as secretary of state, and I could retire."

"Anyone of those has some pluses and some minuses and I simply haven't decided what I'm going to do. If I decide, for example, I want to undertake the race for senator or governor I would want some private assurances from polls and things of that character that there would be an opportunity for success. Not a guarantee because there is never any guarantee in public service, you know."

"In politics, everything is always a gamble. But you would want some polls that showed you had a chance."

Improved safety techniques in mines credited to unions

By STEVE SLACK

A miner and the son of a miner, Bradley Evislizer, the state's new director of mines and minerals, looks like a coal-mining man.

A massive 6 feet 4 inches, Evislizer ("Just Brad") has a folksy disposition that becomes suddenly serious when he talks about the state's mining operations.

Being the chief executive of mining is "great," according to Evislizer, especially with the nation crying Illinois coal with renewed interest.

A former instructor in mining practices at Rend Lake Junior College, near his home town of Christopher, Evislizer has handled a variety of mining jobs.

He began working the third shift at the Freeman Number 4 Mine and subsequently became a mine examiner, maintenance foreman and electrical engineer.

During and between those jobs, the director spent time behind a school desk himself, advancing through a series of training programs, urged on by his wife, Mary Ann.

He was at a school in Alabama, Evislizer said, when, after the first day of classes, he came home and told his wife, "Let's pack up, I'm not going through with it."

"She said, 'No, you're going to tough it out,'" Evislizer said. "So, even though I didn't have the background, I made it through with the encouragement of my wife."

His father, Evislizer said, worked the Franklin County coal seams for 43 years, nearly losing his life in an accident that left him permanently injured.

"Dad started out hand-loading," he said. "That's when you made coal all of one day and loaded it by hand the next."

"He retired and lived a year and ten days."

The hard work and danger of the mines never affected him, Evislizer said. As long as he can remember, he wanted to be a coal miner.

Mine safety will be a continuing concern of his office, Evislizer said. And he cited new safety procedures as the most important change in mining operations.

"If the retired miner were to underground today he'd find a different environment altogether," Evislizer said.

He listed dust control projects and uncontaminated air supply systems as innovative changes in Illinois mining.

Evislizer gives much of the credit for these new safety techniques to the mining union, to which he once belonged.

He said he expects better relations between unions and management in the future.

He said he was "many strikes I participated in against my better judgment."

Evislizer also cited an electrical training program and continued work on mine subsidence problems as department goals.

The director praised the mining companies for doing "a tremendous job" in the area of land reclamation.

"The yields that are coming off the lands are very good," Evislizer said.

Other environmental restrictions on Illinois coal and its production have been "difficult," Evislizer said, but not impossible.

"The industry has suffered a lot of effects from these new laws," Evislizer said. "But if it's the law, we're just going to have to live with it."

Government hires reorganization aide

SPRINGFIELD — A researcher with a strong background in government has been hired by Gov. James Thompson to work on government reorganization.

He is Richard J. Carlson of Springfield.

Carlson, 33, was graduated from the University of Illinois with a bachelor's degree in communications, a master's degree in journalism and a Ph.D. in political science.

He served as an intern under former Senate president pro tem W. Russell Aronson in 1967 and worked on the staff of the Constitutional Convention.

For the past three years he has been the director of research for the Council of State Government in Lexington, Ky.

(He is not to be confused with Rick Carlson, a member of the Senate GOP staff who will be the new lottery director. Richard Carlson once wrote a book entitled "The Illinois Legislature, Structure and Process." Rick later revised the book, and both names appear as authors on the new editions.)

Carlson is being paid $26,000 annually in his new position. He is working with Joan Schill of Chicago on reorganization, one of the major goals of the Thompson administration.

Meanwhile, Ed Nash of Waukegan will begin work as a public information officer for the state Department of Registration and Education. He was hired for the position by Joan Anderson, director of the department.

Nash, a graduate of Yale University, is the city editor of the Waukegan News-Sun. He previously served as the legislative correspondent and political editor for the newspaper.

Nash will work in the Chicago office.

In other personnel areas, look for the appointment of a Missouri man to be the new director of the division of energy in the state Department of Business and Economic Development.

Marvin Nodiff is expected to be appointed. He served as an assistant to former Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond and played a key role in establishing the Department of Natural Resources in that state.

Insurance awaited on State Park patrol car

The State Park Place Auxiliary Police Department, which operates a squad car purchased by Nameeki Township, has parked the car again — this time due to an insurance problem.

The Nameeki Town Board of Trustees was told Monday night that the insurance Madison County purchased for the police cars operated by State Park and by the Nameeki Auxiliary Police expired July 22, and each department is responsible for purchasing its own insurance.

Nameeki unit volunteers showed township officials proof that their new insurance policy now is in effect. But State Park officers said they have not yet received verification of insurance.

They said the State Park car has been left parked until such verification has been received and shown to township officials.

Both volunteer police units have relied on grants from the township to continue operations, but the township has contended that the departments must pay their own insurance costs. Both departments have used social events, fashion shows and other activities and have solicited donations from businessmen and residents to raise operating funds, but State Park has had difficulty in finding adequate financial support.

Nameeki volunteers are reporting good support from the area they serve — Nameeki Township Precincts Three, Five and 11.

The township is continuing to support both departments when uniforms, guns, radios and other equipment are needed. On Monday night, the board agreed to purchase two needed uniforms for new Nameeki unit officers under bids previously received.

A request for a riot gun, scanner and other equipment for that department was tabled until bids for those items can be received and opened.

Transfers of city's funds

Fund transfers voted by the City Council of Granite City Tuesday night were described as part of a process under which reserves are placed in a particular fund to draw interest and then are distributed to additional accounts as the need for them arises.

From the sales tax fund, $127,308 was withdrawn and apportioned to the fire department $48,582, water service $1,450, police department $61,850, lighting $7,428, general government $5,181 and City Hall, $2,815.

With $80,641 taken from the state income tax fund, the council transferred $23,317 to sanitation, $30,400 to interest and judgments, $17,995 to municipal retirement, $2,735 to the humane department, $2,704 to the parking meter fund, $1,064 to school crossing guards, $1,642 to the city engineer fund and $781 to the employment-training (manpower) program.

years ago, our city was $88,000 in the red. Money is very tight. "What these men are overlooking is the hard fact that our assessed valuation has dropped from $23 million to only $16 million. This is about a $150,000 loss in yearly revenue."

"The city is not trying to be cheap or anything like that, but there is only so much money available."

"Another thing, what about a couple of years from now? Where will we be?"

"We lost Laclede Steel, and in ten years the income from some of the plants at the Mearns Industrial Park will be ended."

"Unfortunately, I believe many of the men are not looking into their future. If the city has no money in a few years, there can be no jobs. Tomorrow does come — and frequently quicker than we plan," Sasyk said.

"We are going to hire at least one more policeman in the near future," Mayor Sasyk said.

"There has been a question raised about veteran eligibility points and I have instructed the city legal department to get me an opinion in writing on this. I don't want to get the city in a lawsuit."

"When we hire a policeman, it will be strictly according to the rules set by law."

Madison Police Chief Donald L. Bridick said, "I have absolutely no comment" on the pay controversy.

A seven per cent salary increase for fulltime city employees amounts to between $55.65 and $84.10 per month, officials said.

City Comptroller Al Hudzik related, "The seven per cent raise will be on all employees' Aug. 15 paychecks. This is retroactive to May 1, start of the fiscal year."

"How much money is received will depend on whether the back pay is on that check or the next one."

"I base the payroll checks on the ordinance, and for anyone to refuse the raise, they would have to make a refund to the city."

When asked what police plan to do, the Unit 110 spokesman said, "Really, I can make no comment until we hold another meeting, which will be very soon."

"However, we have thought about and discussed setting up informational pickets so the people of Madison will start taking an interest in a hard look at the present city administration, and what money is being spent for."

"We are also discussing hiring an outside auditor to go over all the city's books and perhaps discover where any assets are that we are not aware of."

"Over a month ago, we were told that another police officer would be hired. None has been hired yet."

"The ordinance calls for 13 police officers and we were told flatly the city would only hire 12, and that includes the chief."

"We only have eight working now, while in 1970 we had 16, the spokesman emphasized."

Recommendations from the police to the city council which were distributed are as follows:

"Madison Police Unit 110 has the following recommendations which may make the Madison city government more efficient."

"We recommend that the finance committee investigate the following:

1. "Car expenses paid to employees who are assigned a city-owned vehicle."

"The actual duties performed by the Community Development Committee and justification of the $3,600 annually paid to committee members."

3. "The $1,200 annually paid each alderman for expenses without proof of same."

4. "The mayor receiving $2,400 annually as liquor commissioner when the mayor is by ordinance liquor commissioner."

5. "Employees receiving pay from the city beyond that required by state or local ordinance for alleged disability."

6. "The feasibility of a time study for all city departments and their department heads and utilization of personnel."

7. "The past practice of denying hospitalization and other insurance benefits to 'part-time employees' while certain elected and appointed officials who serve on a part-time basis have hospitalization and other insurance benefits paid by the city."

8. "The policy of policemen putting out fires — the liability and safety without proper training and equipment."

9. "The reason why no patrolmen have been hired — vacancies exist, the eligibility list is currently out and we were promised action a month ago."

"Thanking you for your consideration, Richard Krichok, William Fanning, Norris Horton, Charles Bridick, Thomas Volecki, William Papa, Paul Barge, William Steiner and Frank Papa."

Shift from equipment to payroll in Granite City's shared revenue

Granite City aldermen on Tuesday night budgeted $336,993 in federal revenue sharing funds of the municipality, retaining the same total that had been projected for 1977-78 but altering many of the proposed allocations.

The main emphasis was on providing additional payroll funds believed to be needed for the fiscal year that began May 1. Provision for new equipment was reduced from the level that had been set tentatively.

Alderman Warren Decatur, chairman of the City Council's negotiating committee, said at Tuesday night's regular council meeting that a substantial agreement has been reached with firemen, police and office employees.

He reported no response from street workers, and said sewage treatment plant employees have rejected a wage offer from the city.

No changes were made in a $59,591 appropriation of shared revenue for the sixth entitlement period.

Included were $33,920 for the payroll of two policemen, $15,900 for the assistant superintendent of streets, $6,000 for ordinance codification, $2,200 for remodeling of a City Hall conference room and foyer, $1,171 for a fire department radio with vehicular charger and $400 for publication costs.

In the seventh entitlement period, payroll funds were increased to $45,516 for police, $25,000 more than the tentative figure; $45,716 for the street department, up $22,000; and $48,756 for firemen, up $20,000.

To offset these changes, a $25,000 backhoe, $22,000 high-lift and $20,000 clam digger were omitted. Items budgeted in the $216,400 seventh period appropriation included:

Sidewalks and streets in the Fourth Ward $12,446, firemen's mobile impact tool $1,100 and mobile radio equipment $2,500, traffic department payroll $387, school crossing guards $2,412, humane department pay $1,274, a 1978 auto for the fire department $6,000, rescue tool $5,000, tool and garden shed at the No. 3 fire station $300, small tractor for snow removal and grass cutting $1,500, office desk and chairs for fire chief's office $300, fire department radio equipment $2,500, police firing range $15,000, power posthole digger $2,000 and tailgate spreader $2,500.

In the $382,508 eighth entitlement period budget, the City Council provided $94,000 for police pay, $55,000 for the fire department payroll, $61,000 for street employee's pay, $3,000 for fire hose, extinguishers and nozzles, $2,850 for the police firing range and $1,725 for four twin sonic light bars and speakers.

To allow for these newly-listed figures, the city's share of the cost of a new police station was trimmed from $122,000 to $45,000, the allocation for curb, gutter and street improvements was changed from $127,508 to $29,630, a $10,000 dump truck was listed instead of two such trucks and a $6,000 concrete breaker attachment for backhoes was omitted.

Also budgeted were $64,000 for nine 1978 police autos and $28,000 for remodeling of a fire department shower facility.

For streets and roads, the eighth entitlement lists $3,000 for power saws, equipment and parts, $3,000 for a front-end snowplow, $2,200 for two two-way radios, $1,000 for a concrete saw, $3,000 for a scraper blade attachment, $5,000 for a new car for the street superintendent and $6,000 for a new six-inch gas sewer pump.

In the $278,485 ninth entitlement period, aldermen approved $97,767 for police pay, up $30,000 from the tentative amount; $81,126 for firemen's salaries, also up $30,000; and $14,341 for the traffic department payroll, up $15,259 from what had been shown tentatively.

To offset these revisions, the funds provided for a new fire pumper truck was cut from $80,000 to $40,000 and $33,259 for curbs, gutters and streets was eliminated.

In addition, aldermen approved $40,468 for street paving, $4,458 for school crossing guards, $2,554 for the humane department, $2,500 for a yearly audit and $1,258 for sanitation employee's payroll.

A year ago, in portions of the third through seventh entitlement periods, Granite City budgeted $834,273 for equipment and wages paid for from federal revenue sharing.

Busy schedule at River Fest's site

The 1962 film, "Days of Wine and Roses," starring Jack Lemmon and Lee Remick, will be shown in the Meridian Hall of the University Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville this evening as the distinguished film series continues. The series is a perennial of the Mississippi River Festival, and admission is by donation.

On Friday, George Benson, jazz artist of long standing, will perform at the Festival site beginning at 8:30 p.m.

The Nikolaia Dance Theater will appear at the River Festival Saturday evening. The theater has performed throughout the United States and critics have called it "a giant of an American dance company that stands out from the rest." The dance theater performance also will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Pianist Ruth Slenczynska will be featured in the Festival chamber series Monday evening, Aug. 1. The performance will include works by Woodard, Brahms and Mozart.

All chamber events take place in the Meridian Hall and begin at 8:30 p.m.

SCHNUCKS EXHIBIT at the grand opening festival of the Convention Center in St. Louis through Aug. 7 features this 1904 general store complete with products from that era. Recapturing the spirit and following the theme of the 1904 World's Fair, the exhibition is a showcase for products that will shape the third century.

just as the Fair showed the country a glimpse of its second hundred years. The 1,200-square-foot Schnucks display ties together something old, something current, and something for the future; it takes the food shopper from a general store of yesteryear to the supermarket technology of tomorrow. A 1904 Oldsmobile is parked in front.

Concern over future of shared revenue is voiced by alderman

Political expediency may be motivating city officials in utilizing infusions of federal revenue sharing to help meet payroll costs, Alderman Fred P. Schuman Jr. suggested at Tuesday night's City Council Meeting.

Saying that it could be a mistake to rely on shared revenue, he urged that it be limited to one-time transactions like contracts and purchases related to property and equipment acquisitions.

He voiced the opinion that residents would be willing to accept a bigger property tax hike than is now projected, in order to limit the city's dependence on federal decisions and possible federal control.

"I understand that we've had extraordinary expenses this year," Schuman said, indicating that he will try again next year to have all city salaries paid from local funds.

As City Council members sought to comment on or ask questions about the 1977-78 city budget that was being considered, Mayor Paul Schuler several times admonished the aldermen to address the chair before speaking, rather than making verbal interjections during other council members' remarks.

Extensive praise was voiced for Finance Committee members on their work in developing the new budget, and it was noted that the mayor and other officials aided in the task.

Alderman Charles Douglas disagreed with such help but was advised that the mayor is an ex-officio member of all committees.

Schuman objected to changes being made in the budget during Monday's and Tuesday's council sessions.

Finance Chairman Paul Ray Bowler said he agreed with efforts to devote shared revenue strictly to capital spending as quickly as this becomes feasible.

Bowler said slight changes became necessary Tuesday to comply with regulations, and added that he had contacted committee members during the day.

Alderman Ronald Coleman defended reliance on shared revenue as a means of keeping local tax rates as low as possible.

Another alderman, Gerald Parnley, said the city appears to be attempting to operate on the basis of taxing ordinances adopted in 1931. He proposed study of new laws to increase liquor and business licenses.

Alderman Warren Decatur denied being contacted about the budget Tuesday. He said he favors faster expansion of the police department, commenting that it has 51 officers compared to 61 each in Alton and Belleville.

Parnley successfully urged that some budget items be given a further breakdown to show the amounts for each part of the multiple category.

The mayor said budget adjustments were necessitated by honest differences of opinion about which of the levy figures to include—and by mistakes in which some proposed funding had been duplicated in both the basic budget and the revenue sharing appropriation.

Schuman agreed with this commentary but said the changes should have been aired at Monday night's discussion.

Mayor Schuler cited instances in which they had been voiced at aldermanic meetings as much as several weeks ago.

Alderman Everett Morten said that if shared revenue ended abruptly, the city would handle it by laying off some employees.

Unemployment insurance laws and regulations may represent a rapidly increasing financial burden on public as well as private employers in Illinois. Effective Jan. 1, 1978, all public employers—such as municipalities and school districts—face mandatory UI coverage for the first time.

To help public employers through the myriad of UI forms and regulations, the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a day-long seminar to brief governmental units on all aspects of compliance with UI laws and guidelines.

The concentrated session, to be repeated six times in various locations throughout the state, will run from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. according to this schedule:

Monday, Aug. 22, Tuesday, Aug. 23, and Wednesday, Aug. 24—all at the Chicago Marriott Motor Hotel.

Friday, Aug. 26—Sheraton Rock Island.

Monday, Aug. 29—Holiday Inn East, Springfield.

Tuesday, Aug. 30—Augustine's, Belleville.

Children to hold benefit carnival

A backyard carnival with refreshments and games will be held from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Waive Sampson, 3813 Lake St.

The event is to benefit the Co-ordinated Youth Services' Emergency School Need Center.

The Sampson children, who decided they wanted to do something for someone, had contacted the local United Way office.

Children putting on the carnival are Vickie and Karen Sampson, Theresa, Tammy, Tommy and Steven, and Ruth and James Stevenson.

Bakalis said he is supportive of all state employees in their efforts to achieve better salaries and conditions, but that he feels he has no recourse at this time other than to question the actions of the administration as they pertained to employees not covered by the contract. The comptroller questioned whether the payments for non-union personnel were binding, as to those in the employ of other elected constitutional officeholders.

Bakalis is asking Attorney General William Scott whether it is legal to pay the $100 bonus and other negotiated step increases to non-union employees.

"The law (Ill. Rev. Stat., Ch. 127, P.145) governing such payments would seem to exclude non-union employees from receiving payments for work already performed unless such payments are made as part of a negotiated wage settlement," Bakalis said.

"I am not questioning the desire of the governor to extend those benefits derived from the negotiated contract with AFSCME to his non-union employees, but only his legal right to do so under current statutes."

Bakalis balks on pay hikes to non-union

Illinois Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis said Wednesday that he regretfully would have to refuse to make payments relative to wage and bonus increases to non-union code state employees until legal questions are clarified by the attorney general concerning a recent settlement reached by the Thompson administration and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

America: It's About Trying

By John W. Gardner

It isn't possible to separate the American Dream from the people who dreamed. Most of the colonists and later immigrants to this land came on their own initiative and were perhaps in their very nature more venturesome than those who remained behind. But some of their attributes can only be explained by the experience on these shores—attributes that came somehow out of the vast land, out of the endless, bustling movement, out of our escape from the burden of history. There was buoyancy, a sense of the future, a taste for improvisation, confidence, a passion for self-improvement, a resilient willingness to keep trying.

Later we came to love success, but that was never what America was about: America was about "trying"—and the opportunity to try.

As the years passed, the American Dream took on deeper, richer, more mature tones. We experienced failure and tragedy. We learned that we were imperfect. We learned that the world was complicated, and that we ourselves were complicated.

Some of the lessons were so bitter, there were observers who thought we'd never recover. And, ironically, the dozen years preceding our 200th birthday were particularly troubled years: assassinations, bitter racial conflict, a hated war and the greatest scandal in our political history.

Americans today are not unmarked by those troubled years. There is uncertainty. There is contempt for much that has been pretentious and false in our national life. But anyone who looks closely will see something else: resilience, stamina, the courage to look at our faults—and under all the noisy, strife-ridden, often self-indulgent surface of our national life, an insistent desire to do better.

We tend to imagine that earlier generations had more "character"; but one must render a mixed judgment. Nineteenth and early Twentieth Century Americans had an essentially youthful notion that nothing could really go wrong for America: every problem would be solved. The Americans from every walk of life today—teachers, business people, workers, professionals and civil servants—who are seriously tackling the problems we face as a nation are, in important ways, more mature. They take a harder view of life.

Our Founding Fathers knew that humans were flawed and that therefore human societies would be flawed. But the soaring optimism of 19th Century America forgot their wisdom and left it behind. In our attitudes today we are closer to the nation's founders than were the Americans of a century ago. Our sense of mission has been chastened and purged of the pride that goes before a fall.

But we haven't given up. True, there is hypocrisy, self-indulgence and cynicism; and we have our share of rascals and fools. But with respect to most Americans, scratch the surface and you'll find a yearning for something better.

We want to be better people. We want to help make this a better country in a better world. We want our liberty, so that we can continue to work on our problems as a free people. We want justice for everyone—and we know now that some of the obstacles to achieving it are in our own hearts and minds. We still treasure the idea of opportunity—to be what each of us can be as individuals, to be what we can be as a nation.

And we want more down-to-earth things too: a decent life for our kids, a job, respect, dignity in our later years. Most of us know that we've got to work for those things. An endless stream of news stories leave the impression that America is awash with lunatics on parole. But most Americans work hard, raise their kids, love their country, stretch each dollar, mourn their dead, and keep going.

Looking back, I have great affection for the morning optimism of a young nation. But my deepest admiration goes to those many Americans who are keeping America's dream alive today.

Lutheran high school administrator chosen; meeting set for Aug. 7

The Metro East Lutheran High School Association is announcing the appointment of William Ebel as its administrator.

Ebel has been associated with the Lutheran high school in Mayer, Minn., a suburb of Minneapolis, since the school was organized in 1961.

His experience includes almost all areas of secondary education. He has taught social studies, English and physical education courses and developed the overall athletic program at Mayer, a Lutheran school of 250 students.

He also assisted in developing the curriculum of the school. He organized an extracurriculum program and served as an athletic director. Ebel has served as a member of the board of directors of the Minnesota South District-Lutheran Church Missouri Synod for the past two years. He is married and has four children.

The Metro East High School Association on Aug. 7 at 2 p.m. will host an informal meeting for all who are interested in the planned new Lutheran high school in this region.

The meeting will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Wood River, located at Illinois Routes

Hartigan, Robertson at Vadalabene dinner

Neil F. Hartigan, former Lieutenant governor of Illinois, will be the main speaker at Sunday's Senator Sam M. Vadalabene birthday salute dinner, it was announced today by Lewis Gilbert, honorary chairman.

The event, with a theme of "Many Happy Returns," will be held at the Meridian Ballroom in the University Center of SIUE on Sunday evening at 7:30.

"The presence of an outstanding citizen of Illinois like Neil Hartigan guarantees that this event will be an expression of the great appreciation we have for Senator Sam's service to us," Gilbert said.

"This dinner was organized by a group of Senator Sam's friends, and certainly Neil Hartigan is prominent among them."

dinner program.

"Randall Robertson has long been a distinguished civic leader in this area. He is known for his eloquence and wit, not just in a courtroom, but wherever he speaks," Gilbert observed.

"Also, it is a well known fact that Mr. Robertson is not of the same political persuasion as Senator Sam," Gilbert continued.

"This highlights the fact that this gathering is one that transcends partisan concerns. It seeks to thank Sam for all the things he has done for his district."

"Everyone at the dinner may not agree with the senator on every single issue. However, everyone recognizes that he is a precious asset to the area."

"The Friends of Senator Sam Committee simply wants to let him know that we want him to celebrate many happy returns of his birthday," Gilbert concluded.

Tickets for the dinner are available at $25 per person or a table of ten at $250 from the Friends of Senator Sam Committee, 26 Circle Drive, Edwardsville 62025, it was noted.

HOUSE PAGE Dennis J. Orsey, left, is congratulated by his sponsor, State Representative Joe E. Lucco (D-Edwardsville), upon completion of his second summer of work for the Illinois House in Springfield. Orsey, a Granite Cityan, will start his second year of law school next month at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Orsey ends second term as House page

Dennis J. Orsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Orsey, 1538 Clark Ave., has completed his second summer of work as Democratic page in the Illinois House of Representatives under sponsorship of State Representative Joe E. Lucco (D-Edwardsville).

House Resolution 405, offered by the Democratic leadership and members, praised the pages for their "keen interest in the governmental process."

It relates that they "have consistently displayed a willing and helpful attitude in performing their duties during the 80th Session of the General Assembly."

The resolution was adopted by the House on July 1 and was signed by Speaker of the House William Redmond.

Orsey also worked as a page during the 79th General Assembly.

The Granite Cityan will start his second year of law school at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale next month. He is a 1972 graduate of South High School here.

George Foehse dies at 70

Funeral services were held today at a Granite City funeral home for George Foehse, 70, of 921 N. Lincoln, Sand Springs, Okla., a former Madison resident.

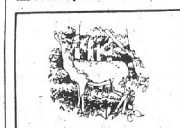

He had been ill for five years and died at his home at 11 p.m. Sunday.

Mr. Foehse had resided in Madison for 46 years prior to moving to Oklahoma. He retired in 1973 from the Southwest Porcelain Steel Co. in Oklahoma after 24 years' service.

He was a member of the Lutheran faith.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Pauline Foehse; one son, George Foehse of Minneapolis, Minn.; two brothers, Edward Foehse of Granite City and Charles Foehse of Madison; and three sisters, Misses Esther, Elnora and Lucille Foehse, all of Granite City.

Post 113 ready for district title playoffs

The stakes are the district championship of the District 22 American Legion Baseball League and a berth in an Aug. 4-7 Fifth Division tournament at Highland.

And the opponents in this weekend's best-of-three series, which will begin at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Cahokia, are North Division champion Tri-City Post 113 and South Division champion Fairview Heights.

A second game is set for 8:30 p.m. Saturday at Cahokia's American Legion Bill Boyer Field near Illinois Route 157.

The third game, if necessary, would be played there at 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

The Tri-City-Fairview winner will advance to the Division

Five tournament in Highland with four other teams, one of which will be Highland.

Conrad "Babe" Champion's Legionnaires will be traveling a familiar road as last year's district and divisional championship team in a season which concluded with runnerup honors in the state finals at Springfield.

This season, the Illinois state tournament is to be played at Galesburg Aug. 11-14.

Although Highland, beaten by Tri-City here last week in playoff competition, is automatically entered in divisional play as the host team, the Post 439 club cannot be taken lightly, based on its past performances.

Formed in 1966, Highland had

District 22 championship teams in three years — 1971, 1973 and 1974 — and was Fifth Division champion in both 1973 and 1974.

The team captured the state title in 1973 and was runnerup in the 1974 state tournament.

"That's looking too far ahead," said Champion. "We have to get past Fairview before considering Highland and the others."

Champion believes Tri-City is a better defensive team overall than its upcoming opponent, but Fairview is loaded with individual talent.

Most of Fairview's players were members of this spring's Belleville East High School baseball squad, which earned its way into the state meet during league games.

Batting .375 at the end of the regular season, Evans has collected 18 hits in 48 times at bat and has batted in 23 runs.

Matching Evans' batting average is Danny Schaus. Keith Champion, the team's catcher, batted .370 and has hit safely 20 times in 54 trips, including a home run.

Champion, Tom Hennrich and Randy Smith have 24 RBIs among them.

Coch Champion said fan support has been instrumental this season in the team's success, and he hopes such support will continue throughout the upcoming tournament games.

Title chase nearing end

Merced, Mitchell and the Music Room Vans loom as the top Illinois Inter-City Baseball League title contenders.

The league's regular season schedule of twinbills concludes Aug. 7 with Merced and the Vans meeting each other at East Alton's VanPreter Park.

Meanwhile, this Sunday, Merced hosts Highland-Pieron at Wilson Park.

Mitchell Athletic Club host the East Alton Brewers at Mitchell Field, Thomas is at East Alton to play the Vans, and J&J Liquor travels to Panama. All the twinbills will start at 1 p.m.

Wendell Corey's Merced squad, defending league champion, took sole possession of last place of second place in the league standings when Panama forfeited a makeup contest at Collinsville to Merced, due to an insufficient number of players.

Merced and the Mitchell Athletic Club were deadlocked in second, each with 17-4 records, and a 6-1 loss last night by Mitchell to the Vans left Merced in perhaps the best position to catch and possibly overtake the 21-3 Vans.

Vans Manager Jim Blackledge, who had pitched only one game in two seasons, took to the mound against Mitchell, allowing Ron Madden's club only seven hits and a lone tally in the fourth inning.

Hector Sababria doubled in that inning and Tom Carroll singled him in.

The Vans scored three runs in each of the third and sixth frame.

Holding down fourth place in the standings are the East Alton Brewers with a 10-12 record, followed by Thomas 8-13, Panama 8-16, Highland 9-15 and J&J 2-21.

Poovey challenging for top motorcycle honors at speedway

What previously appeared to be a wire-to-wire battle between Belleville's Rob Beary and Alabama's Lance Jones for the American Motorcycle Association's (AMA) championship of Tri-City Speedway, now has the makings of becoming a three-way battle. Texan Terry Poovey entered the point standings picture Tuesday evening with his third feature race win of this season. Only four more race dates remain this season at Tri-City's quarter-mile oval, including an inaugural Illinois state championship event on Aug. 23.

Poovey, a recent high school graduate at Garland, Tex., has expressed a desire to fulfill two goals this season—capture Tri-City's track title and the national title. Poovey's bid for Tri-City's season championship had to be earned the hard way Tuesday night.

After capturing a heat race and semifinals in the preliminary competition, the nationally-ranked Texan met fierce competition in the 10-lap feature race in the form of Beary and Jones.

The three riders exchanged the lead, running side by side, several times—during which the leader was never ahead of the other two by more than a few inches.

As one observer described the action, "you could've thrown a tablecloth over the three."

The trio headed into the final turn prior to the checkered flag in the same fashion they displayed throughout the event, but Poovey found a surge of power coming out of the corner to dive underneath his rivals, finishing the event less than a wheel length in front.

Jones, who has nearly dominated the feature races this season, had to settle for runnerup honors, and Beary was third.

Placing in order behind the three were Garth Brown, Ken McDonald, Doug Ahn, Mark Holmes, Gary Ruest, Greg Thompson, Carl Stratman, Jim Rawls and Chris Reitz.

Other Preliminary race victors were: heat races—Jones, Brown, McDonald and Ahn; semifinals—Beary, Brown and McDonald.

Beary still heads the standings here with 146 points, followed by Jones with 124, Poovey 116, Ruest 75, Thompson 74, Brown 56, Rory Simmons 52, Reitz 41, Guy McClure and David Rush 38 each and Ahn, 34 points.

Described by those who know him well as "115 pounds of solid determination," Poovey finished the 1976 national racing scene in 18th place and this year has already bettered himself. He holds down the national point standings position No. 16. Sponsored in racing by his brother, Ted, a retired motorcycle racer, Poovey has won five races, placed second twice and fourth once within a time span of the last two weeks.

He finished the 1976 season here in third place in the final point standings, behind Jones and track titlist Guy McClure.

The year before, Poovey claimed the track championship at Sante Fe Speedway near Chicago.

A victory last season in a Talladega, Ala., short-track national race by the five-foot-five Texan earned him the honor of being only the second rider in national racing history to accomplish that feat before the age of 18.

He also set a new AMA record two years ago, earning required points for advancement from novice division (beginner) to junior division (second-year competitor) in only eight days.

Poovey is handicapped, though, by two factors which may prevent him from becoming a national champion this year.

First, he lacks competitive equipment to attempt to apply his skills to the road racing circuit, which is considered an important part of the national racing scene.

And, he is not fully knowledgeable of the mechanical end of the sport.

But on the nation's short tracks, such as Tri-City, Poovey has proven himself a capable and winning motorcycle racer.

DARYN SCOTT BLAIR CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Daryn Scott Blair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Blair, 2113 St. Clair, celebrated his first birthday Monday, July 25th with a party held in his honor.

A red, yellow and white decorated cake centered with 3 large clown figures was served. The circus clown theme was carried out in the other decorations.

A five-day seminar, starting next Monday Aug. 1, at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville for the rehabilitation of persistent injuries suffered by high school athletes, will be taught by SIUE's head athletic trainer, Bud Buddell.

Ninth graders through seniors are eligible for the camp, which costs $45. Each day will run from 9 a.m. through noon. "Injuries will be analyzed and rehabilitated," said Buddell. "We will use my buddy system, a method of physical conditioning for athletes in all sports."

Those interested are to call Bob Guelker at 692-2160 for additional information.

YOUNG EQUESTRIENNE Annette Thebeau.

Ribbons, smiles and horsemanship

Young Annette Thebeau, 12, riding a horse named Barrister, earned ribbons in four classes at a horse show held at the Rolling Acres Stables, Belleville.

She is the daughter of David M. Thebeau, 3518 Nameoki Road, and will be attending Coolidge Junior High School in September.

The young equestrienne, who has been taking riding lessons for a year, gained first-place and third-place ribbons in classes involving proper horsemanship while walking, trotting and cantering horses on a flat field.

She also earned a fourth-place ribbon in a jumping class, where the horse and rider were judged for proper form while jumping a series of fences which constituted the course.

Another blue ribbon (first place) was won on a more difficult course in the final event of the show.

She has been described as a natural rider with potential by her instructors.

2 on ladder hurt

Two employees of William Montgomery Construction Co. were injured when a ladder in a construction area at the Granite City Steel hot strip line became unhooked and they fell about 30 feet at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Both men were taken by Granite City ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Roger Hill, 29, Collinsville, suffered a fractured jaw, a back injury and pain to his right foot, right ankle, right knee and his neck. He was transferred to St. Louis Desloge Hospital, St. Louis, after extensive x-rays were taken.

John Sims, 31, Collinsville, suffered broken toes to both heels when he landed standing up. He also sustained an injury to his back and was x-rayed and admitted.

George K. Wagner Sr. dies

George Kenneth Wagner Sr., 57, of 2819 Emme Ave., died at 3 p.m. Tuesday in St. Elizabeth Hospital, where he had been a patient for the past two weeks. He had been ill for some time.

Born in Missouri, he moved to Granite City at age 13.

A retired mechanic, he was a member of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife,

Mrs. Edna Pauline Wagner, six children, all living at home, Judy Lynn, 17, Donna Marie, 16, Paula Jean, 14, Georgia Kay, 13, Christina Sue, 10, and George K. Wagner Jr., four; three sisters, Mrs. Thelma Kramer of Sullivan, Mo., Mrs. T. R. (Shirley) Rippy and Mrs. Robert (Breanda) Rains both of Granite City; and one brother, Charles Richard Wagner of Granite City.

Funeral arrangements are listed in today's obituary column.

Suit on lottery winnings

Ownership of a lottery ticket purchased in Granite City which won $205,000 is in dispute in a court case in St. Louis County Circuit Court.

Charles M. Farrell, 20, St. Louis County, filed the suit contending that his half-sister, Mrs. Sharon L. Treese, Ferguson, has received $25,000 in winnings from a ticket he purchased April 15 in Granite City.

He alleges he entrusted the ticket to her, but she signed her name on it as the winner of $5,000 from the ticket.

The ticket also entitled the winner to a drawing in Rockford June 1 at which it won $200,000 in the Bonanza drawing, 10 annual installments of $20,000 each, Farrell says.

The suit contends Mrs. Treese took the initial $5,000 winnings and the first year's installment of $20,000 and deposited them in checking accounts at different banks. She then gave him $6,320 as his winnings, saying she was safeguarding the remainder, he alleges.

The suit further contends Farrell believes Mrs. Treese plans to purchase a house with the remainder of the money. It asks the court to find that the ticket belongs to him, and order her to turn over the remaining winnings to him.

Judge William H. Cradell Jr. issued an order Monday restraining Mrs. Treese from spending such money and freezing her checking accounts until the issue is resolved.

Conference on library services

Governor James Thompson and Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon today announced bipartisan support for the calling of a pre-White House conference on library and information services to be held in Springfield June 1-23, 1978.

The conference will be preceded by eight regional meetings across the state — in Chicago, Palos Hills, Arlington Heights, De Kalb, Peoria, Normal, Jacksonville and Mt. Vernon. Members of the public and those involved in libraries will examine the status and needs of libraries in all areas.

The National White House Conference, to be held in September 1979, was initiated under President Ford and has received full support from President Carter. This will mark the first White House Conference examining the progress and future of the nation's libraries.

Thompson said Dixon said the regional meetings and conferences in Illinois will allow citizens to assess their information needs and make recommendations for the changes and improvements necessary to satisfy the people of the state.

Residents of Illinois interested in serving as delegates to the state conference are to be named by the Illinois Library Association, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 90611. There will be about 700 delegates representing all geographic areas of the state.

Strike

of a Maryville Road extension here. Failure to reach agreement on a new contract was cited.

A union spokesman emphasized that the strike is only against AGC members and does not affect any other contractors, including those who are members of the Southern Illinois Builders Association bargaining unit.

Thirteen Teamsters Locals, including Local 525 in Alton, are involved in the strike, which affects about 250 contracting firms in all parts of the state except Chicago and the Northeastern corner of Illinois.

Pickets were established this morning at all sites of work being done by AGC-affiliated companies, including the Hoeft Brothers Construction Co. on the Maryville Road widening and expansion program.

The nearly four-month-old strike by Longshoremen's Union Local 1706 against the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. soybean processing plant and grain elevator on Cargill Road drew attention this week with allegations by pickets that the company may plan to bring in non-union help.

A larger than normal number of pickets was noticed at the plant entrance road Wednesday and some incidents were alleged.

Police were called to the area twice Wednesday, including an incident at 11 p.m. when an employee and a picket allegedly had a fight as the employee was driving for work.

Jack Spiller of Pontoon Beach, the employee, suffered a cut lip, a chipped tooth and an injury near his left ear.

Spiller alleged a picket warned him he was not safe, and a verbal exchange was followed by a fistfight. Police were called, but the pickets said to be involved had left the scene when police arrived.

Four hours earlier, officers had responded to a call that strikers were refusing to allow employees to leave the plant. Police went to the plant and reported the employees were allowed to leave without incident.

A plant spokesman would say only that the plant is still being manned by supervisory personnel, and would not comment on whether non-union laborers were also being used.

A spokesman in Decatur told the Press-Record that policy prevents a statement being made during a strike.

Pickets allege the company is attempting to bring in non-union workers to either reopen the soybean processing plant or empty out a present stock of soybeans to make room for this year's harvest.

Meanwhile, Illinois Power Co. employees, on strike since July 8, are to vote this week on a tentative agreement reached Tuesday night between company negotiators and IBEW representatives during a meeting with a federal mediator.

All four locals involved will vote today and Friday and the results are expected to be announced Saturday by the union.

Neither side would discuss specific issues, saying only that the new contract contains improved wage and fringe benefits.

About 2,500 employees of Illinois Power went on strike as four IBEW locals agreed to honor the strike deadline of HIGHWAY LINK TO OPEN. Opening of a new portion of the Great River Road system is currently scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday. The 1.5-mile of Federal Aid Route 151 extends from the Army Installation gate at the western end of Niedringhaus Avenue to the eastern approach of the McKinley Bridge in Venice. State Senator Sam Vadala, abene, looking toward Venice, is viewing the new section of road from the southern end of the Chicago Avenue railroad crossing vehicle overpass. The Great River Road is designed to eventually continue southwest from Venice, generally following the present Route Three, to the East St. Louis area.

Local 51, the largest local. The strike includes the entire area served by Illinois Power, supplier of gas and electricity. Another major utility, Bell Telephone, is hopeful that negotiations now under way on the national and district levels can avert a strike, despite an announcement this week that Communications Workers of America have voted in favor of a strike.

The current three-year contract with Bell expires Aug. 8, and there are hopes the workers would continue to work during negotiations, even after Aug. 8. National talks are in progress in Washington, D.C., and talks for the Southwestern District of Illinois Bell are going on in St. Louis. About 700 employees work in the Southwestern District, which includes the Quad-City area, East St. Louis, Belleville, Freeburg, Lebanon and O'Fallon.

Pack hosts watermelon contest

A watermelon and seed spitting contest was conducted at the July meeting of Cub Pack 19 at Washington School, last week.

Those winning first, second and third place in the watermelon eating competition were Lester White, Jake Varadian and John Varadian. Cub Scouts excelling in the seed spitting event were Jay Huber, Lester White and Eric Smith.

The opening colors were presented by the Webelos under the direction of Lester White, Webelos leader.

Cubmaster John Huber introduced Jake Varadian and Everett Hughes, new cub scouts who gave a review of good deeds they had completed in order to turn over their pins.

Eric Smith was awarded his progress toward ranks and two yellow beads and John Varadian received a silver arrow award from Mrs. Gloria Humber, den leader.

The meeting closed with all the cub scouts taking part in the living circle.

Venice schools buy three buses

The Venice School District will purchase two 60-passenger used buses and a 23-passenger used mini-bus to transport Venice pupils during the 1977-78 school year.

Members of the Venice Board of Education agreed to the bus purchase in a 5-2 vote at last night's board meeting.

Total cost of the three vehicles is $18,900, or $19,350 should painting of two of the vehicles not be included in the purchase price. Uncertainty on this point was noted at the meeting.

For the past few months, board members have reviewed several options to meet problems of rising costs in pupil transportation.

A sum of $49,560 is listed in the tentative budget for transportation next year, with anticipated revenue estimated at only $37,677.

Total cost of transportation in 1977-78, including purchase of the used buses, gasoline and oil, maintenance and provisions for backup service, still brings the tentative budget's transportation fund to $47,200 in expenditures.

The cost of hiring three drivers to operate the district-owned buses is not included in the total amount, as agreement has been reached with the Manpower agency to furnish drivers.

Bids for used buses were opened at an earlier meeting of the board, and a decision was delayed until members could inspect the vehicles in person.

Purchase contracts were awarded last night to Kranz Automotive Co., St. Louis, for a 1973 60-passenger bus, $6,400, and 1972 60-passenger bus, $5,600. Both are International Harvester models.

The third vehicle, a 1975 23-passenger Ford mini-bus will be purchased from Padfield Bus Co., Breese, Ill., at a cost of $6,900. The mini-bus will replace a van used to transport special education pupils.

Venice Supt. of Schools Robert N. Vickers said approval has been granted by the Manpower office to utilize two men as custodial assistants and one as a maintenance man, with a dual capacity as bus drivers at no cost to the Venice School District.

Commitment to the proposal, however, still is tenuous, Vickers said, until current contract negotiations are completed with Building Services Employees Union, Local 96, whose contract expired June 30. A negotiating session is scheduled tonight.

Acquisition of the two primary buses for pupil transportation still leaves the Venice District with one bus fewer than last year, when R. W. Harmon & Sons held the transportation contract and used three vehicles, Vickers said.

Local events at center on Sunday

The new St. Louis-Gateway Convention and Exhibition Center has opened and through Aug. 7 is holding a grand opening of events and exhibits honoring cities in the metropolitan area.

Granite City will be one of the honored cities this Sunday, July 31, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. There will be a 50-foot booth exhibiting six 8x6-foot panels, and represented on the panels will be government, industry, schools, churches, parks, surrounding communities, financial agencies and championship sports activities.

At 12 noon Sunday, the Granite City High School North pep band and pom pom squad will entertain.

Introductions and comments by local mayors will begin at 1 p.m., followed by a performance by the St. Louis area Musicians' Union.

The Granite City High School South stage band will perform at 3:30 p.m., followed by another performance by the Musicians' Union.

Free tours of the center for groups of ten or more persons will be available at half-hour intervals from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Approximately 10,000 to 15,000 persons are expected to visit the center this Sunday throughout the daylong activities.

Mrs. Williams dies at home

Mrs. Rosella Williams, 67, of 43 Grosz Drive, was pronounced dead at her home at 6:46 a.m. Tuesday by Randall Irwin, Madison County Deputy Coroner.

Her daughter, Mrs. Bernice Smith of Madison, found her in bed without signs of life and called authorities.

Mrs. Williams had just been released from the hospital.

Born in Lucy, Tenn., she had resided in this area for 35 years. She was a member of Mount Nebo Baptist Church, Madison.

Other survivors include two sons, Lee C. Williams and Eugene Williams, both of Madison; three brothers, Correstus and Sherman Williams, both of Madison, and John H. Williams of Collierville, Tenn.; one sister, Mrs. Mildred Jennings of Madison; 17 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Mount Nebo Baptist Church, 950 Jefferson St., Madison. Burial will be in Sunset Gardens of Memory, East St. Louis.

Go-cart hits barricade

Stacy Thomas, 16, of 54 Villa Drive, suffered facial injuries when a go-cart she was riding struck a steel barricade or post near her home at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

She was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital, where she was admitted for surgery for facial fractures, damaged teeth and a cut to her head.

Officials said she is recuperating well from the surgery. She is the daughter of local funeral director Robert Thomas Jr. and his wife, Tina.

'Helping hand' van is nearly ready in Nameoki Township

Nameoki Township officials have begun the complicated task of scheduling for the township's "Helping Hand Van," which may be put into service early next week to aid the elderly and handicapped with their transportation needs.

The van, donated through the county to the township by Bo Beuckman Ford, Collinsville, will be used to transport aged and handicapped to doctors' appointments, pharmacies and other key destinations.

If scheduling permits, a one-a-week trip to a grocery store will be scheduled. And senior citizens' groups are being requested to get together and decide which grocery the majority wish to visit.

The van is being furnished free-of-charge to the township by the Ford dealership, but the township is required to furnish driver, dispatchers, gasoline and insurance.

Funds have been appropriated from the Community Development program for those purposes.

John Penrod, currently a Manpower employee of the township, has been hired to drive the van, with Jeanette Hoese serving as dispatcher and back-up driver.

Beuckman was putting the township's name and other lettering on the side of the van this week before releasing it to the township.

Township officials say that as soon as word is received that the van's insurance is in effect, the van will be picked up and use of it will begin immediately.

Eligible township residents may make reservations for transportation to important appointments by calling the township office at 831-1230 at least 24 hours in advance of the appointment.

Tornado warning system is planned near Arlington

Nameoki Township is ready to install a tornado warning system between Arlington Heights and the Holiday Mobile Home Park as soon as final approval is received from Ted Todoroff, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness Services (civil defense) for Madison County, the Nameoki Township Board of Trustees was told Monday night.

Trustee W. Lee Adams noted that the township's Community Development Advisory Board has appropriated money for the project. But approval from Todoroff's office is needed before a tornado warning siren can be installed into the civil defense warning network.

A centrally-located site has been selected for the unit, which will be within hearing of the mobile home park and the Arlington Heights area.

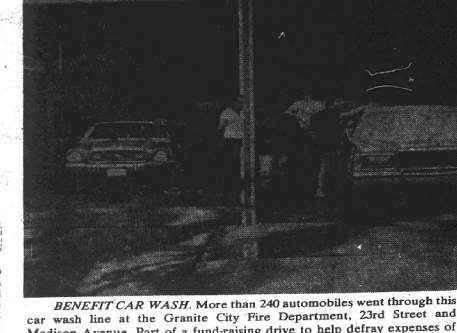

He noted that Arlington Heights now has 120 apartments, 125 homes and 80 housing units existing or under construction. The Holiday Mobile Home Park has 296 units, he added.

Plans to install a tornado warning system for Arlington Heights were thwarted several times by regulations which prohibited civil defense funds from being mixed with federal revenue sharing or Community Development funds for any given project.

Revised community development guidelines have now made the project possible, Adams said.

1974 AUTO STOLEN
Paul Mihalich, 3410 Terrace Lane, said his 1974 beige over cream Cutlass auto was stolen about 1 p.m. Monday from the rear of 1814 Delmar Ave. Keys, bank checks and $120 were in the vehicle. Keys to the car were taken from an area of the business firm where employees keep their personal belongings.

recently-held "special Olympics" for handicapped children, the Saturday event provided donations of more than $900. (Press-Record Photo)

Infant Thompson girl dies

Patricia Terry Thompson, eight-month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George (Cassandra) Thompson, 2507 Circle Drive, Ill. for one week, died at 8 a.m. Tuesday at Cardinal Glennon Hospital, St. Louis.

She was born in Granite City and was a member of the Bethel Chapel Pentecostal Church. Other survivors include a sister, Gina Thompson; three brothers, Ronnie, Daniel and Joseph Thompson, all at home; and grandparents, J. D. Baker of Madison and Mrs. Bernice Thompson of Flat Rock, Ill. Funeral services are being held today at Bethel Chapel. Details are given in the obituary column.

Explain new precinct lines in Nameoki Township areas

New boundaries for Nameoki Township's 12 precincts were explained to the Nameoki Township Board of Trustees Monday night by Madison County Board Member Louis Whitsett, former township supervisor.

Whitsett noted that the turnout at the April township election showed that some Nameoki Township precincts were in violation of a state law limiting the number of registered voters in each precinct to 800.

Overpopulated precincts were used as one of the claims in suits challenging the outcome of that election.

The Madison County Board acted last week to change precinct boundaries in Nameoki Township, creating an additional precinct and reducing some of the larger precincts.

The county board's action combines East Madison (formerly split between Precinct Two and 10) into Precinct Two exclusively.

Pontoon Beach was divided into precincts Nine and 10, thus reducing the size of Nine.

The Wilshire subdivision and Parkway Estates area now are Precinct 12, reducing the size of precinct Six.

New precinct maps are expected to be available from the county in the near future.

Blood sought here 5 days next week

The American Red Cross is "beefing up" its schedule of blood donation centers in an effort to avoid having to issue an emergency appeal for blood for the St. Louis metropolitan region.

"We're very close to running out of blood," a spokesman for the Red Cross told the Press-Record Wednesday, adding, "We are in particular need of Type O positive and Type A positive."

In addition to regular blood-receiving centers throughout the Missouri portion of the area, special clinics are being arranged for this area.

One clinic was open today until 2 p.m. at Granite City High School North.

Blood also is being collected next week Aug. 1 to 5, at the Veeber Health Center, 20th and Iowa streets, daily from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Regular donation centers include 4050 Lindell Blvd., St. Louis, which is open from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Blood is collected at 212 E. Lockwood in Webster Groves, Mo., on Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., on Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Saturdays from 8:30 a.m. to noon.

The Red Cross also accepts blood in Ferguson, Mo., at 15 South Florissant Ave., on Mondays and Tuesdays from noon to 8 p.m. and on Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"This time of year, blood shortages become critical as people go on vacation and are too busy to take the time to give blood."

A gift of blood at this time is particularly appreciated because of the shortage. Now, more than any other time of year, a gift of blood is the gift of life," the spokesman said.

Accepts post at Stanford

Vicky Holt, arts administrator for the Mississippi River Festival held on the SIUE campus, has accepted the position of director of public events at Stanford University.

Her duties at Stanford will include all fine arts programming, a jazz festival, and the scheduling and setting of policy for public events held on the Palo Alto, Calif., campus.

"I'll really miss the Mississippi River Festival," said Mrs. Holt. "It was an excellent training ground for me in arts administration. But the Stanford opportunity was one I simply could not pass by."

Mrs. Holt came to the MRF in March 1975 as concert manager. This season, her duties as arts administrator included site operations as well as grants and fund raising, educational programs and the Summer Music Institute and Summer Dance Institute.

She will remain with the River Festival at the SIUE site until the completion of the 1977 summer season and then begin at Stanford in September.

Delay in mail

Bulk mail destined for major population areas throughout the country may be delayed somewhat because of the effects of the Johnstown, Pa., flood, the U.S. Postal Service has reported.

The delays relate to disruption of the major rail artery that links the eastern seaboard to the midwest and west coast through Pennsylvania's steel belt.

The Postal Service says delivery of the mail will be slowed because all trains carrying parcel post and non-preferential second and third class mail were diverted north over other rail lines. The disruption does not involve first-class mail.

The delays are expected to involve mail originating at or destined for bulk mail centers in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Memphis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

Many phone for tax advice; problem coordinator on duty

The number of telephone calls received through an IRS toll-free telephone system has increased nearly 50 per cent over this time last year, according to Ira S. Loeb, local district director of the Internal Revenue Service.

"Questions relating to new tax law changes, tax bills, delinquency and penalty notices, refund checks and topics not necessarily associated with the filing season account for this increase," he said.

While the majority of taxpayer assistance is provided during the filing season, the IRS provides year-round assistance through the use of the toll-free system.

The toll-free number, 800-252-2921, is available from any location within the state, any weekday Monday through Friday, between 8 a.m. and 4:45 p.m.

"But the IRS is continually looking for ways to better serve the public, so we've set up a Problem Resolution Office to help those people experiencing unusual difficulty with their tax situations," Loeb said.

Taxpayers who have contacted the IRS through usual channels by telephone or mail and still feel they are not receiving appropriate attention, may seek help from the problem resolution coordinator, he said.

Deadline on Aug. 1

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale is encouraging additional transfer students to apply for fall semester admission but has announced that effective Monday, Aug. 1, applications from high school graduates wishing to enter as first-time freshmen will be considered only for next spring's semester.

SIUC President Warren W. Brandt said the Aug. 1 deadline will apply only to first-time entering freshmen and not to continuing students, transfers, re-entering students or graduate students.

New freshmen who have applied for admission before Aug. 1 will not be affected. Brandt said on-campus admissions rates are running about the same level as last year, which would mean that the university expects to enroll between 20,600 and 20,900 students in classes at Carbondale when school starts Aug. 22.

Last year, SIUC counted 20,866 students at the main campus itself and another 1,253 at off-campus locations, for a grand total of 22,119.

"Within the limits of our ability to predict, we will be at the same number of anticipated students on Aug. 1 as we were in 1976," Brandt said. "With our present operating budget, these numbers are all we can handle and still provide the educational quality and atmosphere that our students have come to expect."

Brandt said SIUC was unable to schedule enough freshman classes last year to meet demand with the faculty resources at hand.

Some freshman class sections were limited and couldn't be scheduled until spring, or in some instances the sophomore year.

It marks the second straight year that SIUC has limited new-freshman admissions. The cutoff last year came on June 1, after Brandt and other officials said area housing limitations and the university's pinched budget resources made it necessary.

"We regret the necessity of doing this again," Brandt said of this year's admissions curtailment. "But we are greatly pleased with the continued strong interest that students are showing in SIUC's academic programs."

"Our enrollment was up last year even though enrollments declined statewide. We are holding our enrollment this year despite tightened admissions requirements."

"We have strengthened the university's academic offerings significantly over the past few years and the response has been gratifying. I wish we could accept all the students who want to come."

The coordinator may be reached in the IRS district headquarters office at 325 W. Adams St., Springfield 62704, by calling 800-252-2921.

PFC. KENNETH CULLIPHER

GC serviceman now in Germany

Army Private First Class Kenneth W. Cullipher, 18, has been assigned to Germany, where he is expected to remain for the next two years. He is with the 42nd Maintenance Company.

The serviceman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cullipher, 289 Holiday Mobile Homes Park here.

He enlisted in the Army in October 1975, after attending Granite City High School North.

Pfc. Cullipher completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and was stationed at Hunter Air Force Base, near Savannah, Ga., prior to his overseas assignment.

CONDUCT CHARGE FILED

Responding to a call at 5:10 p.m. Monday in the 2100 block of Cleveland Blvd., police are finding Greg L. Rose, 20, of 3201 Kirkpatrick Homes, striking a woman and yelling obscenities. After he allegedly cursed off officers, he was jailed and charged with disorderly conduct.

2 to 4 a.m.	Eleventh sign following

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) — Also Aries Ascendant) — Travel is favored. Romance may be part of the picture and could grow into a meaningful relationship. Married Aries can achieve new closeness through open discussion and solution of disagreements.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 21) — Also Taurus Ascendant) — If shopping for a new home, take your time to find exactly what you want. Curb tendency toward self-indulgent extravagance — stick to budget. Work on artistic hobbies or projects. Enjoy children.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21) — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Concentrate on what others need. Contact important people. Soft-pedal your own personal ambitions and be cooperative. Redecorating, refurbishing your home is favored but stay within your budget.

CANCER: (June 22 to July 22) — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Financial matters are favored and there are "good buys" available. Don't rely on friend's promises though. If your vacation is taken now, select a place where you can "get away from it all" and relax in serene surroundings.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Also Leo Ascendant) — Go along with others' goals — be unselfish and cooperative. Soft pedal your own personal ambition. If your vacation is taken now, select a place where you can "get away from it all" and relax in serene surroundings.

VIRGO: (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Anxieties and pressures ease so you can clean up all the loose ends getting ready for a new cycle. Search your mind for the answers and be willing to make compromises. Accept changes philosophically.

Conservation annual tour on Aug. 18

The Madison County Soil & Water Conservation District will sponsor its annual all-day bus tour Thursday, Aug. 18. The bus will leave the U.S. Department of Agriculture Building (Old Alton Road, south of the junction of 128 and 143, northwest edge of Edwardsville) at 9 a.m. Among the stops will be a terrace system in operation, a modern waste management system, an irrigation set-up, a woodland area and a demonstration of sheep herding by border collie dogs. An air-conditioned bus has been reserved for the tour, for which there is no charge. Reservations are to be made before Aug. 12 by calling the SCS Office at 656-4710. The only cost is for the lunch at noon.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Also Libra Ascendant) — If you have any health problems see a doctor. Get lots of rest. A new romance may not be enduring so leave yourself free to date others. Curb tendency to exceed your budget when shopping for clothes.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Don't let your popularity go to your head. Don't be overly concerned with distant matters. Concentrate on accuracy of the work you're doing. Keep on an even keel budget-wise. Don't overspend on clothes.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Accept new responsibilities willingly. Romance is favored and finances prosper. Career changes are possible as well as moving your residence. If married, keep relationships harmonious.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Curb tendency toward impulse buying. Many new people could come into your life now. Be wary of the motives of others during this period, but be realistic about any problems you have brought on yourself.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Trust your intuition regarding other people's motives. Finances improve and money coming in now should be saved, not spent. A marriage or romance may be short but could be things going on behind your back.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20) — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Channel your energies to behind-the-scenes activities. Evaluate your wardrobe and look your best. Try to resist depression if a good friend seems a little "testy." Good ascendance comes in great abundance.

3 charges filed

Told that three people were harassing a family in the 2700 block of Myrtle Avenue at 9:50 p.m. Monday, police followed a truck to a driveway at Wilson and Marshall avenues and arrested Roger D. Clements, 31, of 2143 Benton St. Officers alleged an open half-pint of whiskey and a can of beer were found in the truck cab, along with several empty beer cans and bottles. Clements allegedly said "You won't take me" and started to flee but tripped over a trailer hitch, fell and was handcuffed. He was charged with resisting arrest, having no driver's license and transporting alcohol.

Conversion to coal—storage question

By JOAN MURARO
SPRINGFIELD—Family rooms and doctors' offices, not corporate foot-dragging, may prove to be the biggest stumbling blocks to increased use of coal to ease the energy crunch.

The question may not be "Should we?" so much as "Can we?" according to Pat Lynch, recently named deputy director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

Lynch previously headed the air pollution control section of IEPA, a group which frequently has had run-ins with industry and commerce over the burning of coal, and particularly high sulfur Illinois coal, because of its contribution to air pollution.

Lynch agrees the concept of going back to using coal to produce energy is appealing, particularly the idea of using Illinois coal which lies under the surfaces of the state in staggering amounts.

The problem, he says, is that in many cases the facilities to ship, store and burn coal just aren't there any more.

When industries converted many years ago to gas and oil for energy, Lynch says, they usually weren't motivated by environmental concerns, but by economy.

After converting, they often tore out the rail sidings by which coal used to arrive, sold the sites where they used to pile the huge coal heaps until burned, and usually they tore out the "combustion unit."

What ordinary citizens would call the furnace.

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD Thurs., July 28, 1977 Page 20

Now, with clarification calls from the administration for a switch to coal for increased energy independence, industries probably would be happy to comply, Lynch thinks — though again, for economic more than environmental reasons, given recent spiralling costs of oil and gas. "But in a lot of places there's now an apartment building or a doctor's office sitting where the coal pile used to go," he says. "What are they going to do — fill the doctor's waiting room with coal?"

One exception is the Capitol complex in Springfield. When the state shifted from coal for heat some time ago, new stalling but the old coal furnaces were left in place. "They could switch back overnight," says Lynch. The state has announced it plans to do just that. All that causes any delay is getting the coal delivered and installing some comparatively minor alterations in the stacks. In private homes as well as industry, the homeowner who converted to gas or oil usually assumed he'd converted for good. He had the old stoker taken out and in many cases converted what had been the coal room into a spare bedroom or a family room. "They could have a new stoker put back in, since most of them just sat in the new burning unit inside the old furnace housing," Lynch says. "But are they really going to convert that nice family room back to a coal room?"

There's a question of philosophy involved as well, he feels. "Just how hard should we push, and whom?" he asks. "Just the 'biggies' like ComEd and the Will County power station, or residences and small commercial operations too? Should we agree to permit pollution right back up to a level just short of doing people harm, or should we try to hold on to some of the gains we've made? How much should we pay to be better than we just have to be?"

The Federal Energy Administration has the authority to order a firm or a community to convert to meet clean air standards, and has ordered some to do so, like the Staley manufacturing plant in Decatur, and the Ridgeland power station of Com-Ed in northeastern Illinois.

For whatever it demonstrates, the FEA has ordered Waukegan to burn coal even though the city is already burning coal for energy.

Lynch said he assumes the FEA acted to keep Waukegan from deciding to switch back, but then again...

State environment agency studies storage facilities

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD Thurs., July 28, 1977 Page 21

SPRINGFIELD — "There are just not that many easy conversions out there; if the boiler is gone, there is no way to reconvert to coal except at tremendous cost."

The speaker is Pat Lynch, deputy director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and previously head of the air pollution control section for the agency.

Both jobs have given him a wealth of information about air conditions in the state, but one of the biggest things the EPA is learning now is how little it knows about the possibilities of seeing large-scale shifts back to coal as a prime energy source.

Retrofitting anything is always far less satisfactory and far more expensive than building the feature into the project in the first place, Lynch says. That complicates the problems to be faced in Illinois if some industries decided to refit for coal burning.

"The 'if' ones are the facilities now being built," he says. "Like the Collins station Commonwealth-Edison is building in Grundy County. It was planned for oil. The first of the five units is in place and should be on line this summer or fall. The storage tanks are built and filled with oil. Now what do they do? Do they redesign the plant to make the other four units coal-burning? Where do they put the coal pile if they do?"

To get a handle on the problem, the EPA is currently doing an in-depth survey to find how many facilities there may be in the Chicago area which still have coal storage capacity, have rail sidings for coal shipments, still have parts or all of the old coal-burning system.

Even if plants decide to reconvert, what will burning coal do to Illinois' air?

"Environmentalists are fond of saying they don't force anyone to burn low sulfur coal; they are only forcing them to meet emission limits," Lynch says. He feels such antics with semantics may be amusing, but they fail to clear the air — literally.

"We hope we've learned something in the seven years since the agency was created," he says. "We now know who's emitting what, we can handle data better."

As a result, the agency is conducting its own "little sunset study" to see if some overkill may have been built in original regulations, or "did we do it right in the first place?"

Boundaries will be one subject of study. When regulations were first drawn, the original lines were usually drawn along county borders.

"But some power plants are right at the boundaries," he says, "and where should we draw the lines in determining their standards?"

For instance, he says, there are three big power plants at Joliet — the old, the new and the Will County facilities. If Will County is lumped with Chicago in a major metropolitan area, the three plants would violate air standards by burning Illinois coal. But if they were treated as a separate county-defined unit, the chances are they could burn some Illinois coal without violating the standards.

It is not likely, Lynch says, that Chicago plants will ever be allowed to burn "dirty" coal — air quality there just doesn't leave any leeway for additional pollution.

But the outlying areas — like Joliet, or the Waukegan plant in Lake County — pose what he thinks is the basic philosophic question the agency must answer: "Say it was shown they could convert the Waukegan plant to burn Illinois coal without passing the air standard limits. Even if it doesn't violate them, if it isn't bad enough to do harm to people, is it good to give up the gains we've made?"

"We all know less sulfur is better than more sulfur. How hard do we push?"

Leota McKinney with Bell system 40 years

Mrs. Leota V. McKinney of Granite City will observe her 40th service anniversary with the Bell System on Wednesday, Aug. 3.

Mrs. McKinney, who is manager of Illinois Bell's operator services forces in East St. Louis, is a native of Cape Girardeau, Missouri. She began her long telephone career with Southwestern Bell in Granite City in 1937 as an operator. She has held various positions in the company's operator services department, and was transferred to East St. Louis in 1968 as a PBX instructor.

She was promoted to her present post in 1967. Mrs. McKinney is a member and former president of Zonta International. She also is a member of the Cahokia Council of Telephone Pioneers of America and a past-vice president of the organization's Illinois Council.

She has a daughter, Mrs. Sandy Pinkel, who is employed by Southwestern Bell in St. Louis.

ENGAGED. Miss Ellen Katherine Boda whose parents, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Boda, 2017 St. Clair Ave., are announcing her engagement to John Miller. A June wedding is planned.

Miller-Boda betrothal told

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Boda, 2017 St. Clair Ave., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Ellen Katherine Boda, to John Miller, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller of Westlake, Ohio.

The bride-to-be is a 1973 graduate of Granite City High South and received her Bachelor of Arts Degree May 1977 from Concordia Teachers College, River Forest, Ill. with a major in Music Education. Miss Boda has accepted a teaching position as head instructor at Walther Lutheran High School in Chicago, and will also instruct students in private study of the piano.

The young couple are making plans for a June wedding.

Mrs. Soehnlin delegate to international meeting

Mrs. Henry Soehnlin, a member of Hope Lutheran Church, Granite City, has been chosen as a delegate representing the Metro-Central area to the 17th biennial convention of the international Lutheran Women's Missionary League to be held on the University of Wyoming campus, Laramie, Aug. 8-11.

The LWML, women's auxiliary of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, has 6,000 local societies with 200,000 members in the United States and Canada. About 4,000 delegates and guests are expected to attend the convention.

Theme for the convention is, "Lift Thine Eyes." According to Mrs. Soehnlin, "This theme sets the tone for the convention and encourages us to look beyond the hills to our Heavenly Father. Who loved us enough to send Jesus Christ to die for us. His love surrounds us as the mountains surround Jerusalem, and in response we share that love with others in words and deeds."

Convention speakers will highlight the convention theme. They include Dr. T. A. Raedeke, who directed the 73 evangelist thrust and presently serves as director for the World Home Bible League; Rev. W. Leroy Bisenbath, director of stewardship and evangelism for the Missouri District of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod; Representative Glee Jones, serving her fourth term in the Kansas House of Representatives; and Mrs. Rozella Richardson, a member of the Synod's Task Force on Women.

Among international projects just completed are grants for a dormitory for college students in Baguio City, Philippines; medical missions in Malappuram, India; and a special ministry in a poverty area of Chicago, Illinois.

Delegates will vote on new projects for the coming two year period and elect new officers.

Party honors Ted Kuberski

Ted Kuberski was guest of honor at a surprise birthday party given during the weekend at the Operating Engineers Hall, Mitchell, by his wife and several close friends.

The honoree celebrated his 40th birthday on July 18, and was honored at the weekend event by 120 friends and relatives. He is owner and operator of Kuberski Excavating Co., Granite City.

A buffet style dinner was served in the early evening followed by a dance.

Bakalis sets sights on big league posts

By KEN WATSON
SPRINGFIELD — Coyness in politics has become an outmoded as kissing babies. The way to get ahead these days is to speak out clearly and early.

No one realizes this better than Illinois' youngest statewide office-holder, Comptroller Michael J. Bakalis, 38. The boyish-looking Bakalis, who only a few short years ago was derisively known to Capitol cynics as "The Kid," has developed into one of the most astute political operators to operate beneath the Statehouse Dome.

Bakalis, who burst onto the Illinois political scene as a landslide upset winner for state superintendent of public instruction in 1970 and was an uphill victor for comptroller last year, is setting his sights on one of the two big league offices at stake in 1978.

He hopes to be on the ballot as the Democratic candidate for either governor or United States senator.

In this post-Daley era of transition in the Democratic party, Bakalis has charted a course that dissociates him from the foibles of the recent Democratic past and associates him with the leadership of the future.

In doing so he links his own star with that of the Democrats' brightest star, Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon, 49, and gives the back of his political hand to discrediting former Gov. Dan Walker.

Bakalis frankly defers to Dixon should the latter decide against a second sure-thing as secretary of state and himself decide to try for the political bigtime as a candidate for either governor or senator.

"I've said consistently — I've never changed one iota on this — that in my opinion Alan Dixon has the right to run for any office he wants. He has the first shot and first choice at it. If Alan wants to run for governor I will support Alan Dixon for governor."

"What I'm saying is that much of my decision must rest on what Alan chooses to do. Meanwhile, for whatever reason or whatever schedule he has to make that decision, I cannot sit back and sort of do nothing. I don't think that's how you win elections."

"I've been talking to people. I have been looking for potential areas of support, to see if I had any, seeing if I could raise any money — an exploratory type of thing."

Bakalis comes down hard on Walker and says that should the situation develop he would not shy away from a primary battle.

"I think I would beat him in a primary. I think Dan Walker has lost whatever support he's had. He still has some downstate support, but not as much as he had or he believes he's had. He's lost all the suburban support. All the liberal community has disintegrated. I don't believe Dan Walker can win as governor and I think he would be foolish, frankly, to try."

Bakalis concedes that the primary winner over Walker might well be in for the same fate as Michael J. Howlett last year.

"Obviously that's a risk that I or anyone else running in the Democratic primary would take in running against Mr. Walker — that the winner would be a loser anyhow. But that's a risk you have to take, that's all."

Bakalis disputes the general Statehouse opinion that Republican Gov. James R. Thompson has retained much of the popularity that brought him a landslide victory last year and that voters appear inclined to grant him an extension of his unprecedented two-year term.

"I certainly have seen no polls that would indicate that I would take a different assessment. I would say that the general feeling is sort of struggling shoulders."

Mayor's contest lifts GOP hopes

SPRINGFIELD — Elections in the city of Chicago are always interesting for a number of reasons. Even the recent lopsided mayor's contest was no exception.

Everyone knew for weeks that acting Democratic Mayor Michael Bilandic was going to clobber Republican Alderman Dennis Block.

That he did on election day, hogging 77 per cent of the total vote to 23 per cent for the hapless Block. What interest the election did generate came after the votes were counted.

Both winners and losers expressed pleasure at the outcome. In the cold glow of objectivity it is difficult to see what Democrats, much less the Republicans, had to about.

But top GOP leaders including Gov. James R. Thompson hailed the result as a sign of reviving Republican hopes in Chicago.

It was sort of like Lee waxing exuberant at Appomattox because Grant let him keep his horse.

Any party that can be happy about attracting only 130,845 votes in a city of more than 3 million is being Pollyannaish indeed.

It is also hard to see how Democrats can be too happy with their big city machine's first post-Daley showing.

True, 77 per cent is a good showing in any election this side of the Iron Curtain. But it was tarnished somewhat by the fact that Bilandic received only 475,169 votes.

It should be noted that last November unsuccessful Democratic governor candidate Michael J. Howlett polled 670,297 votes in Chicago while losing the state to Thompson by a record-setting 1,390,137 votes.

Thompson himself polled 511,140 votes in the city of Chicago, or some 35,000 more than did Bilandic in his landslide victory.

Such a comparison is not one to encourage any Democrat giving thought to challenging Thompson next year as Illinois returns to four-year terms for its governors.

Nor can Democrats take much solace from the fact that the outcome was so certain so far in advance of election day that thousands of voters did not bother to vote.

The machine always produces its vote and it did so in the last election. Richard J. Daley, in his most recent elections, was a sure winner, too, but more people did vote.

This year's turnout was the lowest for a mayoralty election in 80 years.

A meager 38 per cent of the city's voters cast ballots. The total vote of 808,114 was little more than half of the 1,181,658 cast in Chicago in the 1976 governor's contest.

It is not too unreasonable to assume that some 600,000 persons who voted last fall and did not vote this time are inclined to go Republican if given a choice of a strong candidate.

Perhaps this is what accounts for the Republicans' expressed contentment with the recent outcome.

Perhaps the most significant development in the mayor's election is that it convincingly showed that the city of Chicago can no longer decide a statewide election and probably has the least influence on the outcome than at any time since the early 1930s.

The question has become moot as to whether the Democrats will, in the post-Daley era, drastically reform their party operation including the outmoded slatemaking process.

They have to. They have no alternative if they expect to win statewide elections against strong Republican candidates.

Quality Army volunteers

The overall quality of the volunteer Army is higher today than at any time during the draft era of the 1960s and early 1970s, Granite City recruiters report.

Congress and the Department of Defense have set two measurements for quality of the military — educational attainment, specifically the high school diploma, and mental test scores.

Despite a recent decrease in the percentage of high school graduate recruits, the educational attainment of the active Army as a whole is higher than at any time in pre-volunteer Army history.

In December 1972, the last month of the draft, 70.6 per cent of the enlisted soldiers were high school graduates. By March 1977, that rate rose to 82.4 per cent.

By comparison, the U.S. Census Bureau reported in 1970 that 51.9 per cent of the adult men and 52.8 per cent of the women in this country are high school graduates. During fiscal year 1977, which began October 1, 1976, the Army's goal is for 88.8 per cent of all new recruits, including women, to be high school diploma-holders.

While the Army fell short of that goal by nine per cent during the first half of the year, the recruits from this year's graduating class are yet to be counted, it was noted.

Also during these six months, however, the volunteers' overall mental test scores were the highest ever recorded. As of this March, 83.7 per cent of all Army enlistees scored in the top three categories on these standardized tests.

The last 10 years of the draft saw 81.3 per cent scoring in the top three — average or higher than average — mental categories.

Such tests are given to measure mental capacity to successfully receive training. They are established by guidelines set by Congress and the Department of Defense. The guidelines specify that if the tests were to be given to a cross-section of 100 adult Americans, 16 would test in the top two, above average, categories.

Sixty-eight would score as average and 16 would be in the two below-average groups. The Army will not accept anyone who tests in the fifth or lowest group.

A ceiling of 10 per cent has been set as the maximum ratio of volunteers who may come from the fourth, or below average, category. This year, the Army has accepted only 6.3 per cent from that group.

Secretary of the Army Clifford L. Alexander believes there is another measure of quality.

More important, in my observation," he says, "are the people who command these young men and women. And, to a person, these commanders agree that this is the finest Army they've seen. These are people who have been in command positions for over 30 years."

Secretary Alexander continues, "In my observations, our Army in Germany, of our Army in Panama and the Continental United States, these are fine young men and women who understand the mission and carry it out quite well. We have a very, very competent force." The Department of Defense issued a report in December of last year entitled "The All-Volunteer Force — Current Status and Prospects." The report not only detailed the successful implementation of the all-volunteer force by the military service, but also analyzed the composition of the volunteer military.

The report presented data which "reveals that previous fears that the all-volunteer force would only attract the poor did not materialize. In fact, the AVF is representative of all income groups."

Additionally, "The AVF is representative of the American youth regionally."

For example, the 10 most populous states, containing 55 per cent of the male youth population, accounted for 53 per cent of all Army enlistments last year.

The 20 most populous states, with 75 per cent of the population, provided 74.8 per cent of Army volunteers.

The report concluded, "The all-volunteer force has been successful and can be sustained in the future through committed, competent and flexible leadership."

St. Margaret Mary, St. Joseph schools win county fair awards

Six area schools shared awards in education and natural history competition at the Madison County Fair on its opening day Monday.

The competing schools were St. Margaret Mary School of Granite City, St. Joseph School of Granite City, Highland Elementary School, Highland Junior High School, Highland High School and Grantfork Grade School of Highland.

Each school took home at least one first place award in the 15 areas of competition.

St. Margaret Mary School of Granite City won the most first-place awards with four.

They were in the fourth grade, fifth grade, science and art divisions.

Highland Junior High took home first-place awards in English, social studies and mathematics division. Highland Senior High School won in the foreign language and home economics divisions.

St. Joseph's School of Granite City also won two awards, in the grade one and grade two divisions.

Highland Elementary School and Grantfork Grade School of Highland each captured one first place.

Highland Elementary won in the grade five division, and Grantfork in grade three.

Rites for father of Mrs. Slate

Funeral services were conducted during the weekend at a funeral home in Horseshoe Bend, Ark., for Robert C. Steele, 68, of Horseshoe Bend, father of Mrs. Irvin (Anne) Slate Jr., of Granite City.

Mr. Steele died July 22 in his home of a heart attack. He managed a lumber company in Steele, Mo., prior to his retirement.

Other survivors include his wife, Mrs. Juanita Steele; another daughter, Mrs. Mary Taylor of Memphis, Tenn.; a sister, Miss Louise Steele of Cape Girardeau, Mo.; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was Sunday in a Steele, Mo. cemetery.

Mrs. Tergovich, 60, dies

Mrs. Rose Marie (Sirock) Tergovich, 60, of 1324 Iowa St., Madison, died at 11 a.m. Monday while undergoing heart surgery at Jewish Hospital, St. Louis.

A lifelong resident of Madison, Mrs. Tergovich was the mother of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church and also the Third Order of St. Francis, Legion of Mary and Lodge Violet 222, Croatian Fraternal Union.

Mrs. Tergovich was employed at the St. Louis Trim ming Co.

Her husband, Frank Tergovich, died Nov. 26, 1962.

Survivors include five sisters, Mrs. Mary Krapovich and Mrs. Stephanie Melaschi, both of Madison, and Miss Ann Sirock, Mrs. George Josephine Martin and Mrs. Tony Thersassa, all of Granite City.

Funeral services were held at St. Mary's. Details are given in the obituary column.

A letter from home

The mirror

When you look in the mirror, do you like what you see? When you are forced to be alone for a few hours, do you grow restless and impatient? What I'm trying to say is, "What do you think of yourself?"

Shorter hours, longer vacations, faster jets and fatter paychecks make it possible for some people to travel further and stay longer. But eventually, everyone must come home again. He must face himself. He must live with himself.

Unfortunately, some people do not enjoy the companionship of self. They dislike themselves, even to the point of self-directed hostility. Actually, there are about four ways to handle one's self.

First, if I do not like myself, I can commit suicide. Each year, about 25,000 Americans write themselves a one-way ticket to the cemetery. Additional thousands try. Others settle for a living oblivion via drugs or alcohol.

A second way to handle myself is selfish rebellion. "If I can't get what I want, neither will you." So I make life a hell for others as I take out my resentment by robbing, killing, raping and intimidating.

Third, I can choose self-resignation. At best, this is a passive and slavish submission to the status quo, to "what is to be." Hopefully, most of us will opt for the best alternative, which is self-acceptance. Not a blind submission to fate, but a willingness to fight today's battles with today's resources. Which is the meaning of Reinhold Niebuhr's prayer, "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference between the two."

Cut with knife at 19th-Street

William M. Palmer, 20, of 2040 Grand Ave., informed police at 12:25 a.m. Tuesday that a group of men followed him from the American Legion Post 113 Hall, 1825 State St., to 19th and State streets and attacked him, one man using a knife to cut him on the face, hand, arm and back.

He was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital, where he was treated for six-inch lacerations to the face and back. He was admitted for surgery.

Palmer had gone to the Legion hall with a friend to talk with his sister, who was attending a wedding reception there.

The friend became involved in an argument with another person. Palmer and his companion left but were followed north on State Street and attacked.

Trip to dentist doesn't have to be scary or painful—it says here

By Annice Brave

The youngster listens in wide-eyed wonder as the student dentist tells him about his teeth. "Your teeth are very strong, but they can break down because little bugs called bacteria will hurt your teeth. They make acid that eats away even real strong teeth like yours."

Going to the dentist may not be fun, but it certainly doesn't have to be scary or painful, as students at the Children's Center for Behavioral Development in East St. Louis learn. The learning experience is shared with a group of student dentists from the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville School of Dental Medicine as they have their first experience treating children with special problems.

The Children's Center is a school for children between the ages of six and 16 with problems that make learning in a regular classroom difficult. The visit by the SIUE dentists is a project of the department of community dentistry and human behavior at the dental school. Judge Brown, an SIUE Behavioral Sciences graduate assistant, who was a practicum student at the Center, helps organize the visits.

SIUE student dentists supervised by Dr. Richard Bebermeyer, an assistant professor at the dental school, and Nancy Neel, oral health counselor, give each child an oral exam, a simple lesson in proper brushing, and a free toothbrush and toothpaste. The aim of this visit is to provide interested dental students with experience in treating special children. In addition, some dental care is provided for children who often don't get it.

Fred Golden, director of the Center, gives a brief orientation to the dental students. "Dental care is like other kinds of care," he explains. "Most of these children are lacking in it."

Dr. Bebermeyer said this is the students' first experience working with special children. "We are here to learn," he said. "We've had no special preparation and no one knows how the children will react to this situation."

Dr. Bebermeyer said the dental student volunteers find this type of training experience into their hectic dental school schedule.

"We want all types of learning experiences," he said. "This is hard for our students to schedule into their program because it takes away clinic time. We don't have the time to do this as often or for as many area schools as we would like."

In addition to visiting some area schools, the dental students, as part of the community dentistry program, visit area nursing homes, Alton Mental Health Center and other schools for special children. "This type of outreach program also trains our dentists to go out into the community when they set up their own dental practices. Our students are shown they are capable of undertaking such a worthwhile program," Dr. Bebermeyer said.

When students, working in teams begin examining the children, they find that the youngsters are very interested in learning about their teeth. They also learn that the children respond well to the student dentist's genuine concern for their well-being.

But the biggest hit of the examination is the free toothbrushes and toothpaste. One little boy was so happy with the gift that he wanted to check all the other boxes to make sure he got as much as everyone else.

And of course there are a few children who are so proud of their new toothbrushes, they don't want to brush their teeth along with the dentists because the brush would get dirty, the students report.

BRUSHING UP—"Brush-along time" is an important part of a child's dental exam as student dentists at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville teach a youngster at the Children's Center for Behavioral Development the proper way to brush teeth. Bill Fiesler of Dayton City and Dave Larson of Rockford are two of the SIUE School of Dental Medicine students who volunteer time to the University's Community Dentistry Program, an outreach program including visits to area schools and nursing homes.

But the happiest children are those who are told they have no cavities. On one visit, a little boy merrily hopped out of the room, waving his toothbrush, and stopped everyone along the way back to his classroom to give them the good news. "No cavities . . . no cavities."

Government reorganization plan not as new as claimed

SPRINGFIELD — In issuing his much-ballyhooed reorganization plan, Gov. James Thompson said Illinois state government had not been reorganized since 1917.

In so doing, the governor implied his reorganization proposal is the first since then. But that's hardly the case. Thompson's proposals are relatively minor and in no way compare to Gov. Frank Lowden's changes 60 years ago.

Instead, Thompson's plan compares to other minor changes made by nearly every governor since Lowden.

Gov. Dan Walker, for example, created a new Department of Aging, upgraded Veterans Affairs to a full department and relegated the Department of Aeronautics to a division within the Department of Transportation. Despite Thompson's claim that he is the first governor to utilize reorganization powers granted in the new state constitution, Walker issued two executive orders which could fall into that category.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie also made significant changes in the structure of government. He created the Department of Local Government Affairs, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Bureau of the Budget and the Capital Development Board.

The Department of Public Safety was split into the Department of Law Enforcement and Corrections. He created the Illinois Bureau of Identification.

Also, the Department of Public Works and Buildings was changed to the Department of Transportation — and the change was more than only.

During the two terms of Gov. Otto Kerner, these departments were created: Mental Health, Children and Family Services, Public Aid, Business and Economic Development and General Services.

With the record of previous governors as a perspective, Thompson's proposals do not seem to be very far-reaching. He wants to abolish the Illinois Bureau of Investigation and combine the Departments of General Services and Finance into one department.

Thompson wants to make a splash with his proposals, though, because a $140,000 study (financed by private enterprise) made certain recommendations and because it was a major theme of his campaign.

Arrest 4 in investigation

Four persons have been charged in connection with a police investigation into an attempted burglary, two burglaries, a theft from an apartment and other incidents. The investigation began Saturday after Lester Spray, 2335 Lincoln Ave., reported he and his wife were awakened by a pounding at the rear door.

Spray investigated and saw a youth with what appeared to be a sledgehammer at the back door. The youth fled on foot. Police searched the area and took a 21-year-old man in for questioning. A watch and an earring in his possession allegedly were traced to a burglary July 20 at the home of George Flack, 2661 E. 23rd St.

Questioning also led to information being developed, allegedly implicating him in a burglary Saturday at the home of William Hobe, 2214 Lincoln Ave.

Eddie L. Holderfield, 21, of 2256 Washington Ave., then was charged with two counts of burglary.

A short time later, Doris A. Colwell, 17, of 2256 Washington Ave., was arrested in an investigation, police reported, noting they wished to search the apartment because Holderfield was believed to have left some items there.

Recovered at her apartment were five diamond rings and $66 in coins from the Hobe residence and a calculator and a credit card, both believed to belong to Flack. It is being alleged Holderfield left the items there.

Further investigation led to the arrest Saturday of Billy G. Stephens, 18, of 2201 Namecki Road, Lot 4, and Wednesday morning of Richard Sears, 22, of 2301 Namecki Road, Lot 3.

Stephens, Sears and Holderfield were charged with theft and criminal trespass to property for allegedly entering the home of James "Buddy" Clubb, 1728 Cleveland Blvd., Saturday and removing $97 cash, $12 in food stamps and a $28 lottery charge.

Mrs. Williams is honored

The 79th birthday of Mrs. Mae Williams, 3033 Washington Ave., was celebrated Sunday afternoon at Wilson Park with a gathering of the Mize family.

Mrs. Williams was the oldest of 12 children born to Bailey and Kenney Mize, who lived in Trigg County, Ky., and Stewart County, Tenn., early in this century. All but one of the eight children still living were in attendance.

They included Mrs. Frances Roberts of Murray, Ky., Mrs. Agnes Kern, Mrs. Brownie Ricks and Mrs. Virginia Bridges, all of Granite City, Mrs. Marie Gantt, also of Murray, and Ed Mize of Edwardsville. Mrs. Bernice Hall of Marion, Ky., was unable to attend.

A brother, Eugene Mize, died in 1968 and a sister, Dorothy Williams, in 1975. Two brothers died in infancy.

Attending Mrs. Williams' birthday celebration were her son and daughter-in-law, Maynard and Mildred Williams, her daughter, Mrs. Maurine Lovallen, and her grandchildren and their families, Max and Nola Gorrell and children, Karen and Danny, of Washington, Mo., Larry and Marty Bridges and children, Shelly and Jamie, Gary and Bonnie Golden and sons, Gary Jr. and Chris, Mike and Adele Williams, and Ronnie and Donnie Williams.

Other family members in attendance were Ernest Kern, Hector and Patty Lynn, Candice Lynn, Mark Lynn, Fred and Chris Warren, Viola Mize, Donna Mize, Debbie Meyer, Chappell Bridges, Lynn and Faye Heister and daughter, Amy, Dwayne and Linda Bridges and daughter, Emily, Lacy Ricks, Dennis Gantt of Murray, Ky., and David Gantt of Gadsden, Ala.

Friends honoring Mrs. Williams included Janet Lampe, Kathy and Paula Kingsley, Phil Warren and Diane Witges.

Ralph Perryman, 73, dies

Ralph Perryman, 73, of 1507 Kirkpatrick Homes, a retired railroad employee, died at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Colonial Haven Nursing Home. He had been ill for two years.

A native of Galatia, Ill., Mr. Perryman had resided in Granite City for 38 years. He had been employed as a fireman by the Terminal Railroad in St. Louis for years prior to his retirement. He was a member of the Fireman's Local.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Perryman; one son, Harold Perryman of Granite City; three daughters, Mrs. Aaron (Marcy) Hart of Granite City and Mrs. Robert (Anna Rose) Myers and Mrs. Michael (Kathleen) Bahen, both of Alton; one sister, Mrs. Sarah Simmons of Herrin, Ill.; and nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services are being held today. Details are given in the obituary column.

SOLAR HAIR, to be featured this fall and winter. It has been reviewed in San Francisco by Dorothy Line, a member of the Elite Hairdressers Affiliate 33 and its official hair fashion committee, and styles director of the Granite City School of Beauty Culture, 1815 Edison Ave. She attended the national convention of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association in late July. Solar Hair has been designed by the 68,000-member association to add warmth to the cold fall and winter months ahead. It is designed in lengths ranging from just below-the-neck to just off-the-shoulder. Daytime styles are pictured. In addition to teaching and studying latest hairfashions, the local stylist was present for a national fashion presentation, featuring solar hair with fashion apparel by San Francisco designer Renee Neiga Howie. Beauty techniques also were revealed in classes throughout the convention.

Luft, Glass seek treasurer post

SPRINGFIELD — At least two legislators — one Democrat and one Republican — are seriously interested in becoming candidates for state treasurer.

They are Rep. Richard Luft, D-Pekin, and Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield.

Luft, 39, hopes to round up early support in his quest for the Democratic nomination. "When the party gets together in December or whenever," he said, "I want to show enough financial strength and political support to be a viable candidate. I feel the financial support is potentially available."

He has already rounded up commitments from 19 state representatives, and as soon as the session is over he plans to form committees of mayors and labor leaders.

Included in Luft's legislative district is the largest United Auto Workers local in the state, so he is expected to have the support of labor leaders in any attempt for treasurer.

Although he has no banking background, he did serve two terms as Tazewell County auditor and prior to that he taught school for six years.

Luft appeared before the party slate-makers seeking the comptroller's nomination for the 1978 election, but he says now that was more for the experience than anything else.

There's talk now of Democrats throwing open the whole process and not having any form of slate-making. Would Luft then be a candidate?

"I can't really say until I find out who the players are," he said.

Of course, there are other Democrats interested in the office — including Sen. Phil Rock, D-Chicago — but none are thought to be as serious about it or as far along as Luft.

The same holds true for Glass on the Republican ticket.

"I'm serious about it," Glass said. "I'm in the process of sending out letters to a number of party officials and I've talked to my colleagues about it. I will actually be seeking the nomination."

Glass, 46, is serving his fourth term in the legislature. A graduate of Princeton University and the University of Michigan Law School, he practices law when the legislature is not in session.

Glass thinks his base of support would come from legislators and from his home county of Cook. The majority of the Republican votes come from suburban Cook County and the adjoining counties.

"I don't know of any other candidate from Cook County," he said. "I plan to spend a good deal of time with county chairmen and present my qualifications to them as soon as it is convenient."

Would he challenge someone in a GOP primary?

"There are a number of qualified candidates," he says. "A primary fight might be all right. It's too early to tell."

One other Republican who is actively seeking support is James Skelton, the chairman of the Champaign County Central Committee and county treasurer.

However, some politicians don't think Skelton will seek state office. If Sen. Stanley Weaver, R-Urbana, retires, they think Skelton might make a bid for that office instead.

Candidates for office must file nominating petitions in December for the November 1978 election.

There is considerable speculation about the treasurer's race simply because it is the only office where the incumbent has announced he will not be running.

Donald Smith, a Republican, has stated that he will not be a candidate.

"Operations and hospital rooms cost a lot more than you think?"

Jail cell fire

Steve Schaeffer, 21, of 2309 Wilson Ave., a prisoner in the Granite City Jail being held on a charge of battery, allegedly set fire to a mattress at 9:15 p.m. Monday. The bedding was destroyed, and firemen were at the scene for about 15 minutes.

He allegedly also blocked a toilet, causing water to flood through a cell block.

He pleaded guilty to the battery count in an appearance before Associate Judge George J. Moran Jr., who sentenced him to 30 days in the Madison County Jail. He also was fined $100 and court costs in connection with two previous charges of damage to property and disorderly conduct.

A charge of damage to city property was filed and he was released on a mittimus to county deputies.

Old Style
Brewed in a traditional
Old World way called Krausening
From the very first day our brewery was opened, Heisenman's Old Style has been fully, that's fully krausened, naturally carbonated, in the traditional Old World way.
Krausening is the most natural way to brew beer and the most expensive. Most expensive because krausening takes more time. A pure-brewing double-brewing art that Old Style insists on using to this very day.
When you brew a beer once you've got a good beer, but when you brew a beer twice you've got a great, light beer and that in essence is what krausening is all about.
Sure, we could use short cuts but we don't, and we won't. Because at Old Style we don't aim to make the most beer, only the best.
That's why Old Style has been fully, that's fully krausened, naturally carbonated since 1853. Try Old Style.
Taste the difference Krausening makes.

DRIVER ARRESTED FOR PUSHING ANOTHER CAR
Sieve J. Piechonski, 24, St. Louis, was charged with reckless driving and transportation of alcohol after his auto allegedly pushed another car backward on a one-lane construction area of Maryville Road near St. Clair Avenue at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

4-H girls win awards

Six members of two Granite City 4-H clubs received ribbons and cash awards this week at the Madison County Fair in Highland, when chosen among the top 10 candidates in modeling garments they had made themselves.

The clothing items modeled had been judged earlier on the merits of sewing ability. Monday and Tuesday evenings' competitions were based on modeling style and poise of the youthful contestants.

Among the top 10 in the second year clothing category on Monday night were: Christine Kessler, fifth place and cash, Patchworkers 4-H Club; Laura Jenness, sixth place and cash, 58'ers 4-H Club; and Susie Burnett, sixth place and cash, Patchworkers.

Awards in Tuesday's modeling contest for third year clothing were received by: Karen Spencer, first place and cash, 58'ers 4-H Club; Wendy McIlvoy, second place and cash, and Debbie Burnett, sixth place and cash, both of the Patchworkers.

State insurance position called 'real challenge'

Richard Mathias knew running the state Department of Insurance would not be easy. Walter Schaefer, former state Supreme Court justice singled out the department as perhaps the one area of government that could be the most improved.

"When I was first offered the job," Mathias said, "My first reaction was 'You have to be crazy to take that.' The more I talked, the more I realized it would be a real challenge. That's why I took it. It's a problem or a challenge. This is a tremendous challenge."

Schaefer, who retired in January, and Mathias' father, Paul, were roommates when they attended law school at the University of Chicago.

After college the elder Mathias worked in the Legislative Reference Bureau for five or six years. (He later served as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention.) Rich, after graduating from the University of Michigan Law School, also decided to work for the Reference Bureau.

Now the director is busy attempting to have certain insurance legislation approved by the General Assembly. Illinois, for example, is the only state in the nation without a law allowing its Department of Insurance to regulate insurance rates.

"This situation is particularly disturbing when one considers that more property-casualty insurance companies are domiciled in Illinois than any other state," he said. "Insurance is definitely big business in Illinois, and some degree of regulatory control over rates is absolutely necessary to balance the interests of that industry with those of the consumers it serves."

He also notes that every director who has served in the last eight years has favored open competition, so he knows his work is cut out for him.

"It was good experience," the director said. "That's one of the reasons I came here." Mathias fondly recalls his start in government. He didn't even have his own desk, sharing a table with two other young lawyers, George Kenney and Jerry Rhoads (now a prominent lawyer and judge, respectively).

After his stint with the Reference Bureau and participation in the Legislative Internship Program, Mathias went into private practice. He did some work for the Cook County Forest Preserve District and along the way caught the attention of the Cook County Board president, Richard Ogilvie.

When Ogilvie was elected governor, one of the men he brought into government was Mathias. He served as the deputy legal counsel and did liaison work with several departments, including insurance.

Thus, Mathias is the only key aide from the Ogilvie Administration to be appointed director of a department by Gov. James Thompson.

"It's hard to judge the two men," Mathias said. "I was in one capacity then — the front office — and now I'm in the grandstand."

"Both are very bright men who want to do the right thing. They are fine to work for. They have a different style, but the times are different, too."

Aaron Sartin, 74, dies

Aaron E. Sartin, 74, of 4206 Kirkpatrick Homes, died at 6:24 a.m. Wednesday at St. Elizabeth Hospital, where he had been a patient for the past week. He had been ill 15 years.

Born in Peach Orchard, Ark., he had lived here for 55 years and was a retired yard foreman at Rossen Scrap Metals, East St. Louis.

Mr. Sartin was a Baptist. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edna (Sorenson) Sartin, three sons, Bobby Sartin of Granite City, David Sartin of Lyonsville, Ala., and Billy Sartin of Caseyville, six daughters, Mrs. Sherman (Shirley) Briggs, Mrs. Beverly Howard and Mrs. LaDon Haynes, all of Granite City, Mrs. Robert (Jackie) Godfrey and Mrs. David (Patricia) Daniels, both of Venice, and Mrs. Jim (Jo Ann) Boyer, 31 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are given in today's obituary column.

Challenge to Percy

By KEN WATSON
SPRINGFIELD — Illinois Democrats looking for a new face to lead them back to dominance in statewide politics may already have found one.

He could be Alex Seith, handsome 42-year-old Hinsdale attorney, who is well along in an effort to land the 1978 nomination for U.S. senator.

The competition is not exactly fierce, considering that Republican incumbent Charles H. Percy, 59, won reelection in 1972 by more than a million votes.

Beneath the Statehouse Dome the only Democrat currently given much of a chance against Percy is Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon. But Dixon is regarded as too smart a politician to risk a sure thing as reelection as secretary of state to undertake what would be an underdog try against Percy.

Trial balloons have been set aloft for former Gov. Dan Walker, but the response has been far from inspiring.

"I don't know for sure what his thoughts are," Seith told us. "The people I hear speaking for him say he's most interested in governor. But I haven't heard him express his view."

With Democratic heavyweights apparently shying away from a Percy confrontation, why does the virtually unknown Seith think he would have a chance of beating him?

Seith was asked whether he has detected any signs that the Percy popularity may be eroding?

"The answer to that question would be part of an election campaign. My purpose at this time in exploring the campaign is to think through all the consequences."

"I am inclined to think I can beat Sen. Percy because I'm qualified to be an outstanding senator in the U.S. Senate and I am considering how I would go about comparing my ability with his performance."

Should Seith indeed become the Democratic nominee he would be specifically challenging Percy in a field where the senator has become regarded as something of an authority — foreign affairs.

As a member of the prestigious Senate International Relations Committee, Percy has travelled extensively about the world and talked with leaders of scores of countries, major and minor.

But Seith has some impressive credentials in the foreign affairs field, too. He was the youngest president of the distinguished Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. "I've travelled in 60 countries. I speak four foreign languages (French, German, Spanish and some Russian). For the three years preceding 1976 I was deputy chairman of the Foreign Affairs Task Force of the Democratic National party."

"The chairman was Averill Harriman and members included Zbigniew Brzezinski (now foreign affairs adviser to President Carter), Cyrus Vance (now secretary of state), and others."

"In short, we had on that committee the people who were the major foreign policy advisors to the party and many of them now to the President of the United States. My role as deputy chairman was to supervise the thinking through and the reasoning out of the number of basic policies, which have now become national policies of the Carter administration."

It is difficult, however, to see Illinois voters influenced to any extent by any campaign debates over foreign policies. Barring a war or an economic setback that would wreck confidence in the Carter administration, any Percy-Seith battle would probably be decided by other factors.

Seith strikes one at first meeting as a man who has the potential to be a formidable campaigner. A graduate of Yale and the Harvard Law School he is unquestionably highly intelligent.

Wouldn't that be silly?

That's what is nice about newspaper ads. They don't disappear in thirty seconds. They stay around the home longer. The consumers you want to reach can read your ad at their leisure. And re-read it. And refer to it later. Or clip a coupon from it. Newspaper ads last longer and reach more people than that other media we sometimes hear from — if it happens to be on.

Employees of agency learn to talk to deaf

By JOAN MURARO
SPRINGFIELD — There wasn't a sound to be heard in the room.

Fifteen women stared at the man who faced them, a slight, assured smile which could mean anything on his lips. He flicked a finger, gestured with his hand.

Silence.

Then one of the women arose and walked toward the man.

"You made a mistake," she said. "There's only one 't' in my name."

Despite the clerical error he handed her the certificate which proved she'd satisfactorily completed a short, intensive course in communicating with the deaf.

The women, and a few others who couldn't attend the last session, are all employees of the state Revenue Department. The man is Robert E. Griffith, resource specialist in the deaf and hard of hearing program of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Griffith himself has been hearing-impaired since his premature birth, and for the last 11 years has been working with the deaf here.

The course he just finished offering at the Revenue Department is a first for state agencies, but many of the 15 women on hand at the final session indicated they hope for another, more advanced, program in the future.

The group were volunteers, who spent an hour and a half once a week for seven weeks to learn the bare basics of hand communications. Five weeks were devoted to finger spelling, in which the position of the fingers indicate a letter of the alphabet. The last two weeks were devoted to sign language, in which positions and movements of one or both hands indicate a word or concept.

The volunteers who took the course proved they were serious by contributing half an hour of their lunch periods to the class time. Griffith proved they were successful by finger-spelling their names. Unless they could read their own names as his fingers "wrote" them in air, they couldn't get the certificate.

The program resulted when a section manager who had two deaf employees working with her asked a supervisor about such a course and mentioned Griffith's name. He had just completed such a training program for a Springfield private firm, and agreed to repeat it for the Revenue Department.

The goal is simple — to make it easier for persons with normal hearing to communicate better with persons whose hearing is impaired.

Presently, Revenue has four deaf employees and may have two or three more soon. Other state agencies have a few, Griffith says.

But with 13.4 million persons in the United States with significant hearing losses, five or six employees to each department isn't going to carry much of an impact. Hence the rest of Griffith's work around the state.

The specialist feels communication of the kind he has been teaching is essential.

"Just about every person with a hearing loss can lip read to some extent," he says, "but it's vastly overrated. Too many sounds are made in the back of the throat and can't be seen." (Prove it to yourself. Look in a mirror and, in normal manner but without sound say "I love you," "let's have a few," "I love the view," and see if you can really see any difference.)

"The deaf person isn't any smarter, or less smart, than anyone else," he says. "The deaf person just can't hear. He brings to anything he does his own background, intelligence, training and attitudes, just like anybody else."

However, if the person was born deaf, or lost his hearing before the age of five, he'll probably have a harder time communicating than the person who loses his hearing later, when he's already started building a vocabulary, has heard normal sounds and speech.

"The deaf person misses out on a lot you take for granted," he says, citing a case of a professional painter who was injured in a fall while on the job. He and his family suffered serious financial hardship though he was entitled to workmen's compensation. He never got it, because he'd never heard of it.

The deaf don't pick up the casual use of terms the rest of us learn without even knowing it. He said he had met a deaf girl who was engaged but asked him what a "date" was.

August gardening hints

By CHRIS DOLL
Area Gardening Advisor

Gardening hints for August:

1. Cut or mow your sprays, cornstalks, cabbage and bean plants, and other garden vegetation while it is still green. Green organic matter decomposes much quicker than dry materials, and future gardening will be easier. It also cleans up the garden area.
2. Don't let weeds "go to seed". Lambsquarters, pigweed, crabgrass, foxtail, purslane, and many other unwanted plants are strating to bloom.

Weekend control next year will be easier if seed formation is prevented this year.

3. Peach and plum trees with brown rot should be sprayed for brown rot at 5 to 7 day intervals during the ripening period. Brown rot can infect and destroy a big percentage of fruit under hot, wet conditions.

Use capstan, sulfur or benomyl (Benlate) sprays or dusts as before. The directions on the label. Fruit can be harvested within 24 hours of any of these treatments.

4. Spray other fruits and vegetables only as needed. Most of the disease infections have already taken off with the hot, dry weather. Fungicides would be needed only where disease pressure threatens the crop.

5. Sow fall vegetables such as cabbage, beans and cucumber beetles can be seen, and necessary sprays can be applied when they appear.

6. The last spray for peach borers should be made before Aug. 5 this year. Use carbaryl (Sevin) at four tablespoons per gallon.

7. Sow a crop of rye, oats, or ryegrass in abandoned garden areas for a green manure or sinter cover crop.

8. Clean up weeds in the strawberry patch and apply a DCPA (Dacthal) herbicide treatment before the fall weeds germinate.

9. Bud-graft any favorite tree fruit variety onto a stock tree of the same variety to increase the variety.

10. Harvest and enjoy pears, grapes, peaches, apples, and watermelons that have taken all season to mature.

Dated this 25th day of July, 1977. Signed: Henry Borish. 25 7 28

NEIGHBORHOOD BARBERSHOP Barber, hair, manicure, pedicure, theater and writing. Theater was her major subject and writing was studied as a secondary subject. All classes were taught by members of the Lawrence University faculty and staff. Upperclass Lawrence students and outside authorities also assisted.

Miss Walker, a Granite City high school student, lived in Sage Hall, a Lawrence residence hall, and ate at the university's Dower Commons during the summer session. Social and recreational activities also were part of the two-week program.

Lawrence University is an independent, liberal arts college and conservatory of music with a educational enrollment of 1,275. The 1977 summer session at Lawrence was the first held at the Appleton campus and it will be repeated in 1978.

Survey notes concern on roads, crime, inflation

Southern Illinoisans want better streets and roads, they're divided on issues like ERA and capital punishment, and they generally approve of the jobs their elected officials are doing.

The conclusions are among several reached by a group of political experts who surveyed residents of Illinois' 24th Congressional District and interpreted their findings for the second annual "Climate of Opinion in Southern Illinois" report.

The report, just released by Southern Illinois University at Carbondale's Social Science Research Bureau, indicates that people in Illinois' southern 22 counties are well pleased with the performance of their state legislators and even more happy with their local governments.

On the other hand, the random survey of 288 households conducted this spring seems to show that people are taking a "wait-and-see" stand on the performance of Gov. James Thompson.

"Surprisingly, people in the district were still noncommittal about Gov. Thompson's performance four or five months into his term," said John Jackson, professor of political science at SIUC and chief author of the report.

Jackson said 44 per cent of those surveyed indicated they are still "uncertain" about how they view the governor.

"Considering the nearly 2-1 margin of Gov. Thompson's victory last fall, this indicates a fairly significant degree of ambivalence toward the governor," he said.

However, among those who have made up their minds about Thompson, the "favorables" outnumber the "unfavorables" four to one.

People appear to have more clear-cut attitudes toward the Illinois Senate and House. Again, favorable responses outnumber unfavorable ones about four to one; however, far fewer respondents were uncertain about their legislators, according to Jackson.

"In view of the lengthy fight over Senate leadership and widespread bad press reviews received by both houses, we expected more criticism than we found," Jackson said.

Those surveyed did indicate they have fewer misgivings about people employed in other lines of work. Physicians, farmers and coal miners all got "very good" ratings.

Even college students appear to be seen in a more favorable light than politicians, according to survey results.

Southern Illinoisans appear nearly equally divided on the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), while strongly favoring capital punishment and mildly favoring a ban on abortions.

About 55 per cent of the respondents favored capital punishment, while 21 per cent opposed it. On ERA, 31 per cent were for it, and 28 per cent against.

The figures on banning abortion were 42 per cent in favor and 35 per cent opposed.

Survey respondents indicated strong support for the performances of fire-fighters, garbage and trash collectors, and school teachers, and a less emphatic degree of support for the performances of police officers.

About 72 per cent gave firefighters a "good" or "very good" rating.

Garbage and trash collectors received a 67 per cent rating in those categories, teachers 56 per cent and police, 51 per cent.

"People appear to be satisfied with the performance of public service employees in these areas. I think the fire-fighters, garbage collectors, teachers and police officers of Southern Illinois should consider this a vote of confidence," said Jackson.

As last year, respondents rated better streets and highways the area's top-priority need.

Following that were needs for new industry, social service for senior citizens, and increased financial support for schools. SIUC was rated among the region's important resources. Those surveyed gave the university a big vote of confidence—79 per cent rating its performance "favorably."

Jackson said one of the main reasons for the survey was the "need to give area lawmakers something besides national opinion polls by which to gauge their votes on many issues."

Like most Americans, Southern Illinoisans are concerned about crime, inflation, unemployment, and energy issues, according to the survey. They rated those issues in that order as top national problems.

ST. ELIZABETH CYO WEEKEND PAPER DRIVE
The Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) will sponsor a paper drive Saturday and Sunday at St. Elizabeth Church parking lot, Pontoon and Johnson roads.

Beth Goff, CYO project chairman, said pickup service on Saturday will be provided if donors will call 931-4790 before 7:30 p.m. Friday, or 877-6425 before 5 p.m. Saturday for pickup Sunday.

Proceeds from the drive will be used to further programs of the youth group, the chairman said.

Over 200 at Amvets installation

Over 200 people crowded into the Amvets Post 204 Home, 1232 Iowa St., Madison, during the weekend as Illinois State Commander Charles Spitz Jr. installed Vasil C. Gravitte as the new Amvets Post 204 commander.

Retiring Commander William Diak opened the meeting, thanking members for support given him, and introduced William Papa, Post public relations officer, Papa acted as master-of-ceremonies and introduced Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk.

The mayor voiced a welcome and expressed appreciation to Amvets officials for attending the installation in Madison. The mayor then praised the work of Post 204.

Special Guests at the event included State Senator Sam Vadalabene and State Representatives Joe E. Lucco and Jim McPike.

Amvets officials included Division Commander John Sabol, State Finance Officer Thomas Keys, Division Commanders Lester Daves and

Other guests included Madison Chief of Police Donald Bridick, Nick Hamilos, administrative assistant to Rep. Lucco, Gary Novich, a Venice

Township trustee, Andrew Gitchoff of the Madison County Board of Review and Dave Clark, commander of American Legion Post 113. Dinner was served by the Madison Ladies Social Club, with dancing following. Commander Gravitte promised to work toward a new home for the post.

FIRST WARD MEETING

Called by Douglas Granite City First Ward Alderman Charles R. Douglas has called for a meeting of ward residents Wednesday, Aug. 3, at 7 p.m. in the Kirkpatrick Homes Recreation Hall to discuss recent City Council actions and ward problems. Residents will be able to ask questions and submit comments during the meeting, he noted.

Plans study in Mexico

A Granite City college student will be returning to school with a slightly larger Spanish vocabulary. Neil Pierson, son of Pastor and Mrs. Don F. Pierson of Nameoki Presbyterian Church, is leaving today for a three-week course in conversational Spanish at the University of Durango in Mexico.

In addition to the classroom work, a wide variety of events is planned to introduce students to Spanish-American culture. Pierson will be staying in the home of a Mexican family during his three-week stay. The cultural and social activities are planned to provide an exchange of experiences among the participants.

The State University of Durango in Mexico makes every effort to make such stays "pleasant and memorable occasions" for out-of-country students," a spokesman said.

Illinois 'trade' deficit with U.S. is worst of any state

By ROBERT ESTILL
Press-Record

Washington Bureau
Illinois continues to be a big loser in the "balance-of-trade" with the federal government. The state sent to Washington nearly $5.96 billion more in taxes than it received in federal spending in 1976, a dollar gap unmatched by any state in the nation.

For each Illinois tax dollar that went to Washington, 71 cents was returned to the state by the federal government. The Illinois federal tax burden was $1,822 per person in 1976; federal spending in Illinois was $1,288 per person.

Paul Simmons' job is to try to put a dent in those statistics and make Illinois a little less the loser.

He is the $30,000-a-year director of the Illinois office in Washington. It was established in 1969 by then Gov. Richard Ogilvie with Tom Corcoran, now the 15th District congressman, as its first director.

Simmons oversees a staff of seven, about double the number previously employed there in Gov. Dan Walker's administration. It costs the state about $200,000 annually for their salaries, travel expenses and rent for about 3,000 square feet of office space they share with the Illinois Office of Education in a gleaming new building four blocks from the Capitol.

They don't have a separate budget. Their salaries and expenses come from the budgets of the primary Illinois departments for which they try to wrest federal funds—Transportation, Public Aid and Business and Economic Development.

Their job is to be Illinois' lobbyist, to pump as much new federal money into the state as is possible, and to guard against losing federal funds.

"Our goal is to find wherever two or more dollars are gathered and put them in Illinois' name," says Simmons. A former New York newspaperman with a master's degree in public administration, he is no stranger to state and federal bureaucracies and the legislative process.

Simmons, 35, worked in New York state government and for the federal Health, Education and Welfare Department between late 1969 and Feb. 28 of this year. That's when he started the Illinois job, one day after being interviewed by Gov. James Thompson.

It was their first meeting. He believes his first four-and-a-half months on the job have been marked by some notable contributions by the Illinois office, including:

—Obtaining a $132 million special authorization to help fund the compromise on the Chicago crosstown expressway.

—Supporting the 16-state Northeast-Midwest Economic Advancement Coalition's successful effort to make changes in the Community Development block grant program's fund allocation formula. This will mean an extra $280 million to Illinois cities over the next three years.

—Continuing attempts to block a bill which would cut Illinois about $27 million annually, primarily in welfare funds, by requiring states to claim federal reimbursement within a year or forfeit rights to the money.

—Aiding Gov. James Thompson's push to rebate $2.5 billion to the states, including $115 million for Illinois, from either the proposed "wellhead tax" on oil or the proposed increase in gasoline taxes at the pumps.

Simmons isn't claiming sole credit for his office for these initiatives.

The Illinois Congressional delegation and Transportation Secretary John D. Kramer did "yeoman service" in cashing in on old political debts to round up support for the crosstown money, he says.

The push for the formula change came from the ongoing effort by the coalition of "ironbelt states" to get a share of the federal largesse that has gone to the "sunbelt states" at the expense of Northern and Great Lakes states.

Under the 1974 housing and development act, funds would be allocated under a formula which gave great consideration to poverty, a boon to the Sunbelt. It contained a "hold harmless" provision saying no state would lose any aid before fiscal 1978.

Frostbelt states, fearing a fund loss in 1978, are pushing through Congress a measure giving states the choice of the 1974 formula or an alternative formula benefitting the Midwest and Northeast by giving primary consideration to the factors of older housing and declining populations.

Simmons said Illinois is in the forefront of efforts to block any one-year statute of limitations because of the potential loss in federal welfare funds.

He says states could be penalized for claim filing delays resulting from court challenges or the vagaries of the federal rule-making process.

Thompson, of course, has been his own best salesman for his campaign to get the federal government to share with the states an increased federal gasoline taxes as a means of offsetting state motor fuel tax losses.

Simmons is hopeful, Illinois will make some improvements in its "balance of payments," but notes the figures can be misleading.

Since the federal government matches each dollar the state spends on welfare, the state could make a major improvement in the "federal funds received" category by giving everybody on welfare a $1,000-a-month bonus. But the drawback is that the state would have to come up with half the money, he noted.

Simmons, while vowing to leave no bureaucratic bush or Congressional cranny unprobed in his search for the bucks, isn't making predictions of any dramatic upsurge for the state.

"I don't dare forecast because then I could be called an utter failure if it doesn't happen," Simmons says. "But I'm hopeful for some improvement."

Inflation still squeezing National Steel earnings

National Steel Corporation earned $25,036,674, or $1.30 per share, on sales of $656,523,795 in the second quarter of 1977, it was announced Monday afternoon in Pittsburgh.

The company's earnings of $27,667,568, or $1.47 per share, on sales of $754,770,262 in the similar 1976 period.

"Demand in the second quarter of this year, while not as strong as last year's similar period, was at good levels. This enabled us to ship at a rate very nearly equal to the comparable quarter last year," said George A. Stinson, chairman.

"However, profitability continued to lag as a result of inflation in our costs. The 13 price increase came too late to benefit earnings materially in this period."

For the first half of 1977, National Steel earned $30,055,003, or $1.56 per share, on sales of $1,575,869,967, compared with $29,927,077, or $2.19 per share, on sales of $1,441,593,142 in the first six months of 1976.

"Because of the severity of the impact of unseasonably harsh weather during January and February, it was not possible to make up this shortfall in the final four months of the half," Stinson said.

In the second 1977 quarter, primary steel production totaled 2,564,500 tons, and shipments were 2,112,100 tons. In the first half of 1977, production totaled 4,882,100 tons, and shipments were 4,056,000 tons.

For both the quarter and the half, primary steel production and shipments were, respectively, eight per cent and three per cent below the comparable 1976 periods.

"We expect demand for our flat-rolled products to be at good levels during the second half of this year," Chairman Stinson said.

"The outlook for shipments to the automotive market, particularly to truck manufacturers, is encouraging."

"Considerable strength is being shown by the heavy electrical machinery and appliance markets, while modest gains are expected in non-residential construction and railroad equipment."

However, imported steel is depressing the otherwise strong levels at which we might be shipping," Stinson added.

Increased imports, which reached alarming proportions, particularly in the second quarter, reflect poorer economic conditions abroad—and the attempts of foreign steelmakers to cut their losses by dumping steel in our domestic market.

"Anti-dumping procedures may have to be invoked, but they will not provide the needed immediate relief which enforcement of other provisions of the Trade Act of 1974 could bring," Stinson said.

Construction of a continuous slab casting machine at the Great Lakes Steel Division (near Detroit) is nearing completion, with start-up scheduled for this fall.

The caster is designed to produce the world's widest slabs—measuring 104 inches wide by 12 inches thick. Stinson said it is expected to improve productivity and yield as well as reduce energy requirements and costs.

Veterans being urged to use educational benefits

Belleville Area College is implementing a Veterans Outreach Program to identify and locate veterans who have not taken advantage of all their educational benefits.

Nationally, 35 percent of all veterans have additional unused benefits available to them through the G.I. Bill, including free tutoring and the Illinois Veterans Scholarship.

That's why the college is offering the tuition of all Illinois veterans regardless of their separation date.

A proposed five per cent increase in the monthly allowances for veterans and their dependents and servicemen training under the Vietnam Era G.I. Bill will make education an ever better plan for veterans, it is being asserted.

Max Cleland, federal administrator of veterans affairs, says the proposed increase raises the monthly allowance to $307 for a single veteran taking fulltime training. A married veteran without children would receive $364 per month, and a veteran with a wife and one child would receive $416 per month.

The Belleville Area College Veterans Outreach Program seeks to inform veterans in the college district of these benefits.

The BAC district includes portions of St. Clair, Madison, Washington, Perry, and Bond counties and all of Monroe and Randolph counties.

Jerry Burch, a Korean veteran, is coordinating the outreach program.

Ken Fish, Veterans Administration representative at the college, describes Belleville Area College as one of only a few schools in the state with a significant increase in veterans enrollment.

Last year, over 1,500 veterans attended BAC.

The college offers 33 vocational programs, college transfer programs, general studies classes, general education development, refresher classes and tutoring for veterans.

The Belleville Area College Veterans Affairs Office is open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday. It offers information concerning available educational benefits at 235-2700, extension 226.

Deadline for some licenses

Alan J. Dixon, Illinois secretary of state is reminding vehicle owners that the deadline for displaying 1976-77 fiscal year license plates is midnight Friday, July 29.

"This date ends the extension from June 30 on fiscal year plates," Dixon said. "Sales for new 1977-78 licenses show an increase of over 40,000 from a comparable time last year."

Weed control emphasized

By RON CORNWELL
County Agricultural Advisor
We are receiving questions through the Extension office concerning weed control in corn after tasseling.

Farmers should not apply 2,4-D to corn after it tassels. Once the corn plant reaches the dough stage, 2,4-D can be used. Dough stage is about 3½ weeks after silking.

Research shows that application of 2,4-D after tasseling will inhibit ear shoots and fill. Farmers also should not spray seed cornfields with the chemical until after the "black layer" stage because seed viability may be affected.

Weeds will be larger after the dough stage and will be harder to eliminate with 2,4-D. By the dough stage, weeds will have little effect on yield. The only advantage of spraying after the dough stage would be to make harvesting easier.

Now is the time to check fields for Johnsongrass problems. This time of year, Johnsongrass is easy to identify.

This makes it easy to find those areas of the field, along the ditch bank or other locations where Johnsongrass needs to be controlled.

Johnsongrass is a perennial grass plant that grows from three to 10 feet tall. The plant can usually be identified by its large, purplish seed head which is present this time of year.

When in doubt about the correct identification of the plant, dig up the root system. If whitish and fleshy rhizomes with scales at the nodes are present, the plant is Johnsongrass.

Herbicides are the only successful way to control Johnsongrass. Ellery Knake, University of Illinois weed specialist, says Johnsongrass should be sprayed when it is 12 to 14 inches high and actively growing.

In noncrop areas or on a roadside, either Roundup or Dalapon will eliminate the old Johnsongrass plants and rhizomes. Treflan can be used in soybeans and Eradicane can be used in corn as a part of the cropping program to control Johnsongrass seedlings.

A vaccine capable of combating the spread of pseudorabies in swine has recently been approved for use in Illinois. The modified live-virus vaccine, called PR-Vac, developed by Norden Laboratories of Lincoln, Neb., is the only swine pseudorabies vaccine approved for use in the state.

The vaccine is available now through a licensed veterinarian for certain infected herds under close supervision of the Illinois Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Paul Doby, superintendent of the Illinois Division of NEAT, Poultry and Livestock Inspection, can provide veterinarians information on the use of PR-Vac.

Barry Jacobsen, University of Illinois Extension plant pathologist, says soybeans may benefit from a fungicide treatment this year.

Weather conditions this year have been ideal for promotion of several diseases. Warm, wet weather, especially during bloom and pod set, is ideal for disease.

Foliar fungicide treatment can help reduce loss from Septoria Brown Spot, Cercospora Leaf Blight, Anthracnose, Pod and Stem Blight and Stem Canker.

There are several factors to consider before deciding to spray. If at bloom, the 30-day forecast is for warm, wet weather, there is a good chance the diseases will be active.

In that case, two sprays are suggested: one at early pod set and the second 14 to 21 days later.

Other factors that influence the disease potential in soybeans include having soybeans in the same field two consecutive years, using an early maturing variety and the field has the capability of producing more than 40 bushel soybeans per acre.

Should you decide to spray, Jacobsen says that aerial application will give better coverage than ground application.

Madison County farmers will be attending a Forage Day tour Aug. 2 at the Vernon Vahkamp farm near Carlyle.

Vernon's solar hay drying barn will be the highlight of the tour. The tour will also cover solar collector construction and operation, drying big bales, rebaling into small bales, handling hay on pallets, use of preservatives in storing hay, and hay production information.

Latest workmen's compensation changes said to be of little help

Newly enacted changes in the Illinois workmen's compensation law will reduce average employer costs by only 2.6 per cent, in the opinion of the National Council on Compensation Insurance.

The New York-based group reached this conclusion in a report to the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

The 1977 General Assembly session this spring and summer saw a struggle by employer and organized labor forces regarding the 1975 law dealing with compensation for worker injuries and disabilities.

One side sought no changes and the other urged major revisions; they disagreed over the impact on employment and the "business climate."

Orville Bergren, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, is asserting, "This report confirms our claim that the bill finally enacted by the General Assembly is little more than cosmetic."

"Illinois employer costs for workmen's compensation are the highest in the country, and are going higher despite the recent changes. One side won with political strength, but Illinois with its business climate problem — was the loser."

Illinois employers have alleged there have been steeply rising costs in this field ever since the legislature granted large benefit increases in 1975.

Insurance cost increases to employers have averaged almost 80 per cent, it is contended, and some employers premium rates have increased 300 or 400 per cent compared to what they paid in 1974.

The legislature in 1976 amended the law to reduce the benefits. Those changes, also branded by employers as cosmetic, reduced employer costs by less than one per cent, it is being estimated.

Bergren added, "We have tried twice for meaningful reform in these laws, and have failed both times. Employers are determined to make Illinois competitive with other states. The future of many manufacturing jobs is at stake. We will return to Springfield to resume our efforts to make Illinois legislators see the light."

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS BRITT. They were united in marriage at the First Assembly of God Church. Formerly Miss Janet Lynn Harper, the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Martin, 3821 Village Lane.

Janet Lynn Harper and Dennis Britt are wed

The wedding of Miss Janet Lynn Harper, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Martin, 3821 Apt. D, Village Lane, and Dennis Kevin Britt, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Britt, 121 Granville St., Venice, was solemnized on July 16 at the First Assembly of God Church.

Wedding music played before the service, by the church organist, included The Lord's Prayer and "Sunrise, Sunset".

The Rev. Dale Edwards officiated at a double ring ceremony at 6 o'clock in the evening, before a flower bedecked altar.

For her wedding the former Miss Harper chose a white organza A-line style gown fashioned with a molded bodice, high neckline and long tapered sleeves, enhanced with Chantilla lace motifs.

The lace appliques were repeated on the front of the semi-straight skirt and also accented the chapel train.

She wore a lace Juliet cap to secure a lace trimmed mantilla veil. Her bridal bouquet was composed of yellow and white roses, laced with baby's breath.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Pat Jackson, a sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Denise Harper, the bride's sister-in-law and Miss Mary Beth Britt, a sister of the groom.

They were groomed in rainbow colored dresses in maize, mint green and apricot chiffon designed with Empire bodices with tiny shoulder straps complemented with matching jackets trimmed with a floral embroidery.

Each attendant held a bouquet of carnations, daisies and baby's breath in shades to match their gowns, and also wore a headband of fresh flowers in their hair.

Beth Ann Poston, the flower girl, wore a long white dress featuring a lace braid on the sleeves, and around the neckline. She carried a basket of carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Paul Harper, a nephew of the bride, served as the ringbearer.

The groom chose his brother, Tim Britt, as his best man. Groomsmen and ushers included Howard Harper, a brother of the bride, Eddie Levy, Danny Poston, a cousin of the groom and Steve Crain.

Mrs. Martin, mother of the bride, selected a formal princess style blue gown created with long sleeves and V-neckline enhanced with a rhinestone and pearl trim.

Mrs. Britt, mother of the groom, chose a blue floor length gown fashioned along princess lines with long chiffon sleeves

Mrs. Ervay is shower honoree

Mrs. Kerry (Suzanne) Ervay was guest of honor at a baby shower given Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Jan Wortham and Mrs. Norma Kacera, in the former's home, 2556 Soyle Ave.

In keeping with the event a Teddy Bear theme was carried out in the decorated cake and streamers. Favors were napkins folded to resemble an infant clothing article.

Mrs. Ervay was presented with a handmade corsage of bows, ribbons, baby pins and pacifiers. She opened gifts placed in a bassinet.

During the afternoon games were played and prizes awarded to Evelyn Hoson, Andrea Sheppard, Janis Patton, Vickie Hogan, Beverly Partney and Connie Onesty.

Others attending were Brenda Benson, Carol Springs, Bonnie Karandjeff, Viv Broadwater, Lynn McClain, Carolyn Yates, Cindy Granddier, Cheryl Reader, Ginger Hayes, Pat Adam's, Lois Adams.

Donna Dempsey, Maureen Banks, Kath Hommert, Anne Reiman, Donna DeLurgio, Bernice Baker, Dottie Morger, Jo Ervay, Hazel Thomas and Norma Evelyn.

Tarpoiff-Miller nuptials at Holy Trinity Church

Miss Joyce Lee Miller, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller Jr., 14 Jennyville Lane, Chesterfield, Mo., became the bride of John Alexander Tarpoiff, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Tarpoiff, 1609 Clark Ave., on July 17, at Holy Trinity Bulgarian Eastern Orthodox Church, Madison.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Simon officiated at the double ring ceremony at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Pam Palmer, a sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Floyd Thomson, Mrs. John Barrett, and sisters of the bride, Mrs. Donald Adams and Miss Debbie Miller.

Kimberly Palmer was the flower girl.

The groom chose his uncle, George Palchey, as his best man. Groomsmen were Alex and Craig Tarpoiff, brothers of the groom, Ross Heller and Steve Stagner.

Escorting the guests to their seats were Gary Lanadale, Jim Dierker and John Dundore.

Immediately following the service guests were received by the newly married couple at a reception held at the Norwood Hills Country Club, St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Tarpoiff, parents of the groom, entertained members of the wedding party and their families at a rehearsal dinner held in their home.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii the newly married couple will be at their home in Granite City, after Aug. 1.

The bride graduated from the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., where she was a member of the Delta Gamma Sorority. She now teaches horticulture at North County Technical School, Florissant, Mo.

The groom also attended the UoM and was a member of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity. He is employed at the Tarpoiff Packing Co., Granite City.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN A. TARPOIFF whose marriage was solemnized at Holy Trinity Bulgarian Eastern Orthodox Church in Madison. The bride is the former Miss Joyce Lee Miller, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Miller Jr., 14 Jennyville Lane, Chesterfield, Mo.

Sunday programs at Bethel AME Church

Geri Clayton, a nurse at St. Elizabeth Hospital, will be the guest speaker at a "Nurse's Day" observance at the Bethel AME Church, 1035 Market St., Venice, Sunday.

She has selected "What To Do and What Not To Do in a Heat Wave" as her topic to be presented at the 11 a.m. service, sponsored by the Leona Daggett Nurse Unit of the church, according to Kathleen Moore, president of the host unit.

Gertrude Young, chairman of the program, announces The Bethel Gospel Chorus and the North Venice West Madison Community Gospel Chorus will present a musical program at 6 p.m. Harvey Haynes will serve as master of ceremonies of the event, the chairman added.

The Rev. W. L. Walter, pastor, extends an invitation to the area residents to attend both affairs.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT NOBUS whose wedding took place at the North St. Louis Church of God. The bride is the former Laura Stroder, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Stroder, 2253 Washington Ave.

Nobus-Stroder wedding at St. Louis Church

Miss Laura Stroder became the bride of Robert Nobus at 2 p.m. on June 11 at the North St. Louis Church of God. The Rev. Nathaniel Cruse performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decoration of twin candlesticks and large baskets of white gladiolus, daisies and mums.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Stroder, 2253 Washington Ave. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nobus, 1916 Lynn Ave.

Nuptial selections were played by organist Mrs. Betty Lou Hiles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a gown of white tiffany jersey with a fitted bodice and sheer yoke enhanced with Venetian lace and beads. The long fitted sleeves had beaded lace at the wrists and the long semi-full skirt fell softly into a chapel train.

Her fingertip veil was edged with beads. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations tipped in green and yellow baby's breath.

Miss Penny Barnes was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Faye Stroder, a sister of the bride, and Miss Tammy Barnes.

They chose identical formal length gowns of mint green. Each wore a picture hat and carried a bouquet of white carnations tipped in green and accented by yellow baby's breath.

The groom chose Steve Brewer as his best man. Groomsmen were Larry Kimball, Bob Pritchard, Bob Brewer, and Jake Trtan.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. Nancy

Jolly 12 club holds meeting

The Jolly 12 Club met at the home of Mrs. Emma Steinberg for a two course luncheon and cards.

The decorations were in a modified yellow with roses and baby breath floral bouquet.

Winning prizes were Mesdames Mildred Robertson, Ann Giese, Kathryn Smithson and Ella Wade.

The flower prize was given to Mrs. Pauline Canham and consolation went to Mrs. Nora Williams.

The group will meet at the home of Mrs. Pauline Stephens on Thursday afternoon, Aug. 4.

GC author in Korea says he is muzzled but not embittered

James Wade, author and composer formerly of Granite City and now a resident of Seoul, South Korea, recently had the unusual experience of having the preface to his new book of stories and articles about Korea, published in Seoul, ripped out of nearly 2,000 copies of the first edition under what is being called legal and extra-legal intimidation.

"This had nothing whatever to do with the political or security censorship which exists in South Korea," the 47-year-old writer said in an interview.

"About two-thirds of the contents of my book 'West Meets East' was first published in English language daily Korea Times, to which I contributed for over 11 years.

"In the preface, I explained to readers, many of whom had followed my columns and reviews in the newspaper over a long period, why I stopped writing for the Times at the end of 1974.

"The fact of the matter was that at that time the editor was changed, and the new man set out deliberately to alter the character of the paper from a relatively liberal, literate journal to a bland, dull and conformist publication.

"Since my own articles had always been outspoken, or adopted a controversial tone, it was inevitable that I would clash with the new editor and his policy, especially since the man was hypocritical and personally untruthful—a real disgrace to Korean journalism.

"I explained some of these circumstances in the preface, using terms I considered quite restrained and diplomatic.

"But the piece gave great offense to the wealthy and powerful publisher of the newspaper chain of which Korea Times forms a minor part—a sort of Korean William Randolph Hearst, or Citizen Kane.

"So, as soon as the book was published and a copy fell into his hands, his lawyers served a legal injunction on me demanding that the preface be excised and all copies turned over to them or they would sue.

"My own attorney assured me that what I had written was not libelous under Korean Law as claimed, but I was also told that the publisher was too influential for me to defend the case in court successfully, so I was forced to permit the four offending pages to be removed before the book was commercially distributed.

"Naturally, news of this spread and gave the book more word-of-mouth publicity than it would ever have had otherwise when people noticed the missing preface listed in the table of contents and saw the jagged remains of the torn-out pages.

"Luckily, a few unutilized copies of the book had been sent abroad earlier, so I ordered photocopies of the preface made and mailed via U.S. Army mail to anyone with Army post office privileges who had bought the book, or who knew someone who owned it.

"Hundreds of copies have been sent into Korea, and readers must have been disappointed to find how mild the preface actually is—I wish now I had kept it in its original, much more pungent version.

"But in any case this tempest in a teapot made the publisher and the newspaper a local laughing stock throughout the foreign press of the Korean intellectual community.

"In Korea, there is a holdover still of the old idea that things which are hidden, suppressed or ignored cease to exist.

"It's like the ostrich who hides from danger by sticking his head in the sand. This incident may have had a healthy effect toward dispelling this notion.

"A sequel to this episode occurred five months later when the hypersensitive publisher died suddenly at 60.

"If I had been Father Divine, I might have said, as he did in a comparable situation when his rival evangelist dropped dead, 'I hated to do it,' commented Wade ironically.

"The author, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wade of 2519 Madison Ave., is winding up a three-week vacation in Granite City with his two young sons.

"He has lived in Korea since 1960, employed as an editorial advisor and publicity consultant for various Korean government and private agencies.

"Wade has published almost 1,500 free-lance articles, mostly about Korea, around 300 of them in American and European publications; has written or edited five books published in Korea; and is the composer of an opera, 'The Martyred,' as well as several symphonies.

"Works performed there and in the U.S., Taiwan and Mexico. His fiction, mostly science fiction and horror stories, has appeared in England, America, France, Italy and Vietnam.

"I neither condemn nor condone press censorship as practiced in South Korea," he emphasizes.

"In the present continuing crucial confrontation with the Communist north, the Seoul government feels with some justification that newspaper censorship of items which might prove inflammatory is required.

"After all, there is press censorship in Israel, a country whose liberal and expansionist tendencies America has up to now supported uncritically for many years.

"South Korea has served as a whipping boy for the liberal American press, because its situation is so little understood and so vulnerable to distortion, some of it deliberate.

"Korean newspapers before censorship were sometimes heroic crusaders for reform, but all too often they behaved in an irresponsible manner.

"Vilification of prominent persons unsupported by evidence occurred all too often before the censorship decree of 1962.

"The near-anarchy that erupted during the brief liberal government period of 1960-1961 showed how the press could move to undermine social stability, even unintentionally, inviting a Red take-over.

"There is a clear and present danger of subversion and invasion in South Korea; it is not like here, where we seem to be able to afford the luxury of an outspoken press, at least so far.

"It is up to the Seoul government to maintain security for national survival.

"I or any other outsider may disagree in any particular case with the manner or the extent of the Korean government's control of the press and other expressions of opinion, but it is their country—not ours—and their needs.

"The vast majority of Koreans are now much better off in every way and safer than they have been in this century.

"And in my opinion they have a right to hand over the government to administratively inexperienced agitators—and especially no desire whatever to fall under the sway of the fanatical robot slave-state in North Korea.

"Those American journalists and politicians who equate the two regimes are practicing willful and malicious distortion, or else are remarkably unperceptive.

"The real facts are quite obvious and speak for themselves.

"South Korea is a success story: a country that wants to remain a friend of the United States, with a minimum security guarantee from America which it has well earned," Wade concluded.
